

Indiana Grand Jurors Indict 24 Persons in Ballot Frauds

Names of Accused Not Revealed Pending Arrests

FOUR INDICTMENTS

Probe Follows Findings By Recount Commission

Indianapolis — (AP) — The Marion county grand jury indicted 24 persons today in connection with alleged primary election frauds. Names of those indicted were not made public pending their arrest.

Those named were cited in only four indictments. Criminal Court Judge Frank P. Baker said that inasmuch as they live in or near Indianapolis he would set "reasonable bonds." Capiases were sent to the sheriff's office immediately and it was expected arrests would be made within a few hours.

After submitting its report the grand jury resumed its inquiry and three members of a precinct election board were called as witnesses.

The investigation has been going on for several weeks following the finding by a recount commission of widespread discrepancies in the vote for the Democratic nomination for sheriff in the May primary.

Original Report

In the original tabulation Charles Lutz, the county organization supported candidate, was declared the winner over Al G. Feeney, former Notre Dame football star and former state safety director.

When the recount commission's tabulation showed him an easy victor over Lutz the latter withdrew from the race.

Otto Ray, Marion county sheriff who was defeated by Reginald H. Sullivan for the Democratic nomination for mayor of Indianapolis, also obtained a recount but there was no change in their standing although Ray's total number of votes was increased.

During the recount for sheriff several precincts were found in which the vote was found to be almost exactly opposite what had been recorded by the canvassing board. Feeney gained votes in every ward.

Death, Illness of 15 Laid to Food Poisoning

Chicago — (AP) — The illness of 15 persons in suburban Elmwood Park as the result of food poisoning was disclosed today when a coroner's inquest was opened into the death of Earl Benning, 52.

Benning's physician, Dr. S. L. Hadden, attributed the death to food poisoning. He said five other members of the family were ill, all stricken Tuesday night after eating a chocolate pastry.

Case law books estimated from reports that the sick totaled 25, with 15 of them continued to bed. The source of the food was being investigated by Dr. James Moxan, village health officer.

Warren Benning, a son, testified at the inquest his father became sick after dinner, became much worse today and died en route to a hospital. The inquest was continued to Oct. 4 to permit completion of the post mortem examination.

Noted LaCrosse Doctor Succumbs in Norway

LaCrosse — (AP) — Word was received here today of the death last night in Norway of Dr. Adolf Gunderson, 72, prominent LaCrosse surgeon six of whose sons are physicians.

With Dr. Gunderson, who sailed from this country Aug. 3, were his wife, his son, Borg, who resides in Norway, and Dr. Gunderson's daughter and her husband, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Midelfart of Madison, Wis.

Dr. Gunderson, a graduate of the Royal University of Norway, was knighted with a first class ranking in the Order of St. Olaf by King Haakon in 1926, 35 years after leaving his native country to come to LaCrosse.

Advice: Dine the Doctor

"Invite your family doctor to dinner occasionally. When he knows your home, your morals, fads and foibles, he is better able to keep you all in good health," advises the director of Clinton Hospital, New York, Sure. The more he sees you, the less you'll need him. And the less you need to see of him, the better. And when everybody is well, how'll the doctor pay the doctor? He can't eat out every day. And he can't advertise for patients. It isn't done. Not even in The Post-Crescent classified want-ads though they be as useful as this one was when it sold some plums.

Branigan, Louis Given Jail Terms

Beloit Politician, Janesville Publisher to Serve Sentences

Janesville, Wis. — (AP) — Circuit Judge James Wickham of Eau Claire today imposed nine and eight month county jail sentences respectively on E. R. Branigan, Beloit politician and fuel dealer, and John Louis, 35, Farmer-Labor News publisher of Janesville. They were convicted of criminal libel charges. Branigan, acting as his own attorney, made an application for a stay of execution, which the court denied. Both men are to begin serving sentences immediately.

Judge Wickham dismissed charges against Mrs. Mary Mayhew, Clinton Times-Observer publisher, who was under indictment in the third in a series of inter-related cases.

Louis was found guilty by a jury on 11 counts of criminal libel last night.

Both defendants promised never to issue any publications again. Branigan asserted he was the victim of misrepresentation by "people who came to me with grievances." Louis made a similar statement, and said he would appeal his sentence. Branigan said he did not think he would appeal.

After the two defendants were sentenced they were rearrested on other indictments brought by a county grand jury, charging Branigan with eight counts of slander and Louis with seven counts of libel.

As the verdict was read, Robert Branigan and Mrs. Ursula Bordening of Beloit, son and daughter of E. R. Branigan, asked to be withdrawn as surities on Louis' $5,000 bond. The court granted their request.

Warrants to be Issued in Manitowish Inquiry

Manitowish — (AP) — Attorney General O. S. Loomis announced yesterday criminal warrants would be issued as the result of Manitowish county operations of the B. E. Buckman company, bankrupt Madison investment firm.

Loomis' announcement came at the close of a secret John Doe investigation he conducted in county court. Nine witnesses were examined.

The attorney general said he wanted a few days in which to study the testimony, and then would confer with the district attorney relative to starting criminal prosecution. He declined to say how many warrants would be issued.

Hostile Crowd Thwarts New Jersey Bund Rally

Elizabeth, N. J. — (AP) — Routed by a hostile crowd that jammed a meeting hall and choked all paths leading to it, the German American Bund today denounced such tactics as "ragging of free speech" and set about planning another rally.

Opponents of the bund, estimated by police at 1,000 in number, seized Eintracht hall where the bund had advertised a meeting last night, while another 2,000 blocked the entrance. Bund leaders called off the meeting, planned as an organization gathering, after a conference with Police Chief Frank Brennan.

Roosevelt in Conference on Crisis Abroad

Discusses Developments With Hull, Morgenthau and Davis

PROBLEMS STUDIED

Seek to Determine Effects On Neutrality, Trade And Finance

Washington — (AP) — President Roosevelt called in Secretary Hull, Secretary Morgenthau and Norman Davis today to canvass possible effects of European developments on America's neutrality policy, trade agreements and international finance.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, said these phases "are being more or less seriously discussed and considered."

He added that he was relaying that information to newspapermen so they would know the trend of the discussions and at the same time get away from what he called "scareheads" of the sensational type.

Early said opinion might take form of a war scare if the president were believed to be considering such physical matters as the army and navy.

"No War Scare"

Early said with emphasis.

The president because of the international situation, definitely cancelled a speech he was to have made tomorrow at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the ratification of the New York state constitution. He placed on the tentative list an engagement at Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 20, in observance of the 75th anniversary of the Civil war battle of Chickamauga.

The president's talks with the two cabinet officers and Davis were preliminary to a cabinet session this afternoon.

The chief executive returned to the capital last night from Rochester, Minn., where his eldest son, James, underwent an operation Sunday.

Even before he left his special train, he conferred with Hull for 15 minutes. Then the two men drove to the White House.

White house aides announced the president's regular press conference for today had been called off.

Another development bearing on the international situation was the announcement by the national council for prevention of war that petitions urging passage of a war referendum resolution at the next session of congress were being circulated in many states.

Probes Charges of Fund Solicitation From WPA Workers

Milwaukee — (AP) — Joseph Cannon of Washington, D. C., arrived here today to investigate charges of W. H. Stafford that the Wisconsin Duffey for Senator club had solicited campaign funds from WPA workers.

Cannon represents the senate committee investigating campaign contributions and expenditures.

Stafford, candidate for the Republican nomination for senator, gave orally what he considered evidence bearing on his charges and said he would supply Cannon with an affidavit.

The investigator said he would call on the Duffey for Senator club office.

When Stafford first made the charges, S. B. Corr, club secretary, denied funds had been solicited from federal employees or WPA workers. The club is supporting the candidacy of Senator F. Ryan Duffey, a Democrat, who asks reelection.

The investigator said he would call on the Duffey for Senator club office.

Libke Is Given Life Sentence

Jury Convicts Sparta Man Of First Degree Murder

Sparta, Wis. — (AP) — Alfred Libke, 35, today was under a life sentence in state prison for first degree murder in the shooting of Per Millard outside a tavern the night of Aug. 19.

Sentence was passed by Circuit Judge Robert S. Cowie immediately after a jury convicted Libke last night. The jury deliberated three hours and a half.

Libke told the court "I can sincerely and truthfully say that I am not guilty of any kind of murder."

Libke testified a pistol he had borrowed for protection accidentally discharged as he and Millard struggled outside the tavern. He asserted Millard had threatened him because of his objection to Millard seeing Mrs. Libke.

Chamberlain Cheered on Return Flight to London

PLANS NEW CONFAB

Ready to Discuss Talks With His Colleagues

London — (AP) — The British cabinet tonight was summoned to meet at 11 a. m. (4 a. m. C.S.T.) tomorrow to hear the report Prime Minister Chamberlain brought back by air from his momentous peace talk with Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

London — (AP) — Prime Minister Chamberlain arrived at Heston airport at 5:29 p. m. (10:29 a. m. C.S.T.) today, bringing back from Germany Reichsfuehrer Hitler's man-to-man terms for European peace.

A crowd that jammed the roofs of the airport and surged against its gates cheered as the black-clad prime minister stepped from the airliner in which he sped home to lay the fruits of his meeting with the German leader yesterday before the British government.

Chamberlain said to those who greeted him:

"I have come back rather more quickly than I expected after a journey which, if I had not been so preoccupied, I should have found thoroughly enjoyable."

The prime minister had boarded the plane at Munich after a motor trip from Berchtesgaden. The flight to London was broken by a 22-minute halt at Cologne, where Chamberlain had tea.

"Yesterday afternoon I had a long talk with Herr Hitler," the prime minister said at Heston. "It was a frank talk, but it was a friendly one."

Understand Positions

"I feel satisfied now that each of us fully understands what is in the mind of the other."

"You won't, of course, expect me to discuss now what will be the result of that talk. All I have got now is for discussion with my colleagues, and I would advise you not to accept prematurely any unauthorized report of what took place in the conversation."

"I shall be discussing these talks tonight with my colleagues and others—especially Lord Runciman (unofficial British mediator in Czechoslovakia)—and I shall be glad to discuss them later on, perhaps in a few days, I am going to have another talk."

Woman Killed While on Way to Take New Job

Darlington, Wis. — (AP) — Four miles from her destination, after a trip from Pennsylvania to take a job as housekeeper, 64-year-old Mrs. Laura Alexander was killed in an automobile accident yesterday.

Mrs. Alexander was being driven from Sharon, Pa., to a farm near here by a relative when the car collided with one driven by John Van Meter of Moreland.

'29-Ounce Baby Being Fed With Eye Dropper

Superior, Wis. — (AP) — Hope was held today for the 29-ounce, four-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Ambuster. The infant is being cared for in an incubator at St. Mary's hospital.

Baby Ambuster, said by the hospital's doctors to be the smallest child born in the northwest, is receiving special oxygen treatment and is being fed with an eye dropper.

The infant's diet consists of one teaspoonful of natural milk every two hours.

His bed is inclined, to aid blood circulation.

American Medical Association Group Finds Flaws in Methods Proposed for Federal and State Health Program

Chicago — (AP) — The house of delegates of the American Medical Association gathered today for its third special session in history and indicated strongly it would not accept wholeheartedly or entirely a proposed $650,000,000 federal-state health program.

A special meeting last night sponsored by the North Side branch of the Chicago Medical society, several speakers among the 160 delegates made it plain they do not consider the program, proposed two months ago by President Roosevelt's interdepartmental committee on medical care, a workable one.

Dr. Oliver West, secretary of the association, and Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the association's journal, outlined the program as proposed at the national health conference in July. That conference, they declared, was definitely antagonistic toward the medical profession and the association.

However, both declared, the proposal for a nation-wide health program financed out of taxes from

Fuehrer Also Reported in Demand for Foreign Policy In Harmony With Germany's

BY LOUIS F. LOCHNER

Three Major Points Reported Included In Hitler Demands

Berlin — (AP) — Here are the three cardinal points described to Louis F. Lochner, Associated Press correspondent in Berlin, by a man in contact with high German chancellery officials as Hitler's demands on Czechoslovakia:

1. Cession to Germany of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German area.
2. Binding assurances that Czechoslovakia's foreign policy be in harmony with Germany's.
3. Coordination, after German annexation of Sudetenland, of what is left of Czechoslovakia with Germany's economic system—Germany, for instance, to have final say on the output of the great Czech Skoda munition works and where it is sent.

Would Rule Munitions

Germany, for instance, must have the decisive word to say on the output of the great Skoda munition works at Pilsen and the destination of this output, the source said.

The question of union of the Sudeten area with Germany, this informant said, is not even regarded as an issue by Hitler.

It was said to have been Hitler's starting point in discussions, with all other questions, such as procedure under which the change could be effected, without war, growing out of it.

Chamberlain, it was said, apparently came prepared to concede some form of "Anschluss."

Whether Britain and France were prepared to support Hitler's virtual demand for a German protectorate over Czechoslovakia was believed to have been the question which prompted Chamberlain's sudden return to London.

Brighter Outlook?

"Although German and British officials' decline to disclose the nature of the talks and the status of the question, it is believed that the situation is brighter than it was when Chamberlain returned to London."

World Series to Start on Oct. 5

National League Park Will Be Scene of the 1st Two Games

New York — (AP) — Unless the National league race ends in a tie, the 1938 world's series will open on Wednesday, Oct. 5, with the first two games scheduled in the home of the National league champions. The third, fourth and fifth games will be played in the Yankee Stadium, with the sixth and seventh, if necessary, returning to the National league city.

This was decided today at a conference between Baseball Commissioner Kennesaw M. Landis and representatives of the five clubs involved — the New York Yankees, representing the American league, and the Pittsburgh Pirates, New York Giants, Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs, from the National league, and Will C. Harridge, head of the American league, also attended.

All games will begin at 1:30 p. m. standard time unless there is a Sunday game in New York in which event hostilities will start at 2 p. m. E. S. T.

If the National league race should end in a tie, the blue ribbon event of baseball will be started the third day after the tie is decided. It would be up to Frick to decide when the tie should be played off. He indicated today the play-off would be held on Tuesday following the close of the season on Oct. 2.

Beloit School Board Controversy Settled

Beloit — (AP) — The Beloit school board's controversy over a superintendent of schools was an amicable end today.

D. F. Rice, who went to court when the board discharged him, handed in his resignation yesterday and announced he would spend the year completing his work toward a doctor's degree at the University of Wisconsin.

The board agreed to pay him the superintendent's salary up to and including yesterday.

No new superintendent of schools was named, but Victor F. Dawald, the board's appointee to succeed Rice, was chosen as acting superintendent for the year.

Both the board and Rice agreed to end all litigation started during the several months of the dispute. They issued a joint statement asserting they had arranged the agreement "for the good of the community."

Factional Rift Is Submitted to 2 Vice Chairmen

United Auto Workers Dispute Up for 'Final' Arbitration

Detroit — (AP) — A factional dispute that has split the United Automobile Workers since four international union officers were expelled, was submitted today to two vice chairmen of the Committee for Industrial Organization for "final" arbitration.

Reinstatement of the expelled officers was not specified in the agreement approved by the U. A. W. A. executive board today, but John L. Lewis, CIO chairman, had proposed such action in a "peace plan" that led to today's action.

Observers close to union circles expressed belief Philip Murray and Sidney Hillman, the CIO arbitrators, would order Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes and three expelled vice presidents of the union reinstated.

Alleges Plot

Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, had charged these men with plotting with communists to seize control of the union. The executive board supported him, and expelled the four, leading to bitter internal strife in the U. A. W. A. ranks.

Today's settlement was the fruit of nine days' negotiation by Murray and Hillman, whom Lewis had designated to represent him.

The agreement followed published reports that Martin, who had accused CIO "interference" with the U. A. W. A. and charged Lewis' plan would result in a union "dictatorship," had lost control of the executive board which had supported his previous policies by a 12-6 vote.

Except for immediate reinstatement of the expelled officers, the agreement followed other principal points of Lewis' proposal. It set up a joint CIO-U. A. W. A. committee to determine matters of policy relating to the cooperation between the CIO and the U. A. W. A.

The CIO vice chairmen are to make their decision respecting the expelled officers "Oct. 1 or as soon thereafter as possible."

Wisconsin River in Steady Decline in Portage District

Portage, Wis. — (AP) — The Wisconsin river, which threatened levees guarding Portage and a large surrounding area when it reached its highest stage in history two days ago, receded steadily today.

The stage at 9:30 a. m. was 19.6 feet, a foot below the crest of Thursday. The water still was far above flood level, but Mayor William Mohr said a continued rapid drop was expected.

The skies were clear today and there was no wind, raising hopes the levees would continue to hold and that the danger soon would be over.

Citizens were further cheered by announcement that the 30-foot break in the Duck creek levee had been repaired at 10:30 p. m. yesterday. This prevented additional flooding of the First ward district.

Patrols remained on duty along the levees and work crews continued to sandbag to prevent seepage.

Warrant Issued

The public prosecutor at Eger, a hotbed of Sudeten agitation, issued a warrant for the arrest of Henlein.

SLAYER EXECUTED

San Quentin, Calif. — (AP) — Albert Dyer, 33, was hanged on the gallows of San Quentin prison today for the assault-slashing of three school girls in an Ingwood Park June 26, 1937.

Rescue Sheep and Goat but Refuse to Save Two Skunks

Arden, Wis. — (AP) — William Davis called for help when several of his goats and sheep were marooned and swept away with debris in the Wisconsin river flood.

Two friends responded with a rowboat, saved four sheep, and rescued a billy goat from a log the animal rode a half mile downstream.

The men also sighted animals on another clump of driftwood. They approached near enough to see that two skunks were comfortably riding the waves. Their ride was not disturbed.

Organize Group To Promote State Dairy Products

Harry Jack, Hortonville, Is Director of New Association

Marshfield, Wis.—(P)—Incorporators and directors of the new Wisconsin Dairy Industries Association today made plans for a meeting at Fond du Lac next Thursday at which incorporation proceedings are to be completed.

The 17 incorporators and directors were named at a meeting yesterday, called to promote consumption of Wisconsin dairy products. Bryce Landt of Wisconsin Dells, was chosen temporary president and F. W. Muntz of Greenwood, temporary secretary.

The association set up by-laws under which it will have 19 voting directors representing the major groups of the industry and five non-voting directors representing related public or quasi-public organizations.

Goal of $400,000

Contributions from members, on the basis of 50 cents per 1,000 pounds of butterfat, are to be put together for a hoped-for $400,000 national fund. No contribution is to be sought until plans representing half the butterfat production are signed, or until a fourth of the national goal is pledged in Wisconsin.

Ralph E. Ammon, director of the state department of agriculture and markets, who presided, emphasized that any such organization should be the product of the industry rather than the state. His views were seconded by Wilbur G. Carlson, manager of the Wisconsin agricultural authority.

Both assured the dairymen of state department cooperation.

Directors named in addition to Landt and Hutzicker are: Archie Brovold, Elrick; August Kanning, Ladysmith; E. R. Eckwirth, Ladysmith; E. H. Tucker, Lodi; John Pluckinger, Verona; Harry Jack, Hortonville; O. R. Thompson, Rib Lake; George R. Mooney, Plymouth; C. J. Ebert, Gresham; Mervin Mason, Whitewater; George W. Ruppel, Shawano; Elmer Larson, LaCrosse; Paul Pratt, Wisconsin Rapids; Paul Carver, Ashkosh, and James Prosser, Antigo.

Brody Asks Followers To Help Ekern in Race

Madison — (P)—Lawrence J. Brody, LaCrosse attorney who withdrew six weeks ago from the Progressive senatorial race, asked his followers today to support Herman L. Ekern for the nomination.

Brody sent a circular letter to signers of his nomination papers announcing he would back Ekern against Congressman Thomas R. Amlie, who also is seeking the Progressive senatorial endorsement.

Since Brody was at one time secretary to the late governor and senator, John J. Blaine, Ekern headquarters regarded the Brody letter as throwing the support of the old Blaine forces behind their candidate.

Brody told his followers he withdrew from the contest because he did not have time to prepare for a campaign and because he did not feel justified in neglecting his professional duties.

Campbell Points to U. S. HOLC Foreclosures

Racine—(P)—W. J. Campbell, candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States senate, said in a radio speech last night that real estate agents had received instructions from Washington to sell 600 HOLC homes foreclosed by the government in Racine county within the last few months.

"How many do you think there are in the United States?" he asked. "And what do you think the government is going to do with them in the future?"

"We all want social security. But are we getting it? There is a bill now before congress known as H. R. 4199. In my opinion it is an immense improvement over the present system. . . . It pays as we go, and it does not attempt to pay an unpayable sum."

Henry Opens Attack on 'Whispering Campaign'

Milwaukee — (P)—Robert K. Henry, Republican - Democratic coalition candidate for governor, last night attacked what he termed a "vicious whispering campaign" to the effect that he had abandoned his campaign because of financial difficulties and ill health.

"I have been making five to eight speeches daily," Henry said. "and I am positive I will win the Republican nomination by at least 20,000 votes and will have no difficulty gaining the Democratic nomination, so I will be the only candidate against LaFollette in November."

FALSE ALARM

Some one apparently was in a playful mood about 8:30 last night when the Appleton firemen piloted two trucks to the corner of N. Bennett street and W. Erie street to answer a false alarm. The call came from an alarm box at the intersection.

GEORGE WINS IN GEORGIA PRIMARY

With grim face, Senator Walter F. George sat by his radio in his home at Vienna, Ga., and heard returns from the Georgia Democratic primary. Incomplete returns indicated George's renomination over former Gov. Eugene Talmadge and Lawrence Camp, who was endorsed by President Roosevelt.

Head of Catholic Hospitals Talks Against Federal Health Program

Milwaukee—(P)—The Wisconsin State Medical society last night extended citations for meritorious service to Dr. Eben J. Curry, dean of the Marquette university medical school, and Dr. William S. Middleton, University of Wisconsin medical school dean.

Mrs. Frank Pope, Racine, was presented as the president-elect for 1939 of the women's auxiliary.

The Rev. Fr. Alphonse M. Schwitala, president of the Catholic hospital association of the United States and Canada, spoke at the convention banquet in opposition to a federally supported national health campaign.

He declared the proposal made at a national health conference called last July by President Roosevelt was "untenable" and would wipe out the present hospital system.

"Position Misunderstood"

Joseph G. Norby, one of two Milwaukee hospital superintendents charged by the house of delegates with "attempted sabotage" of the newly accepted hospital insurance plan for the state, told the delegates his position had been misunderstood.

The delegates had adopted a statement of censure prepared by J. C. Crownhart, Madison, society secretary. The statement charged Norby had declared the Wisconsin conference of Catholic hospitals was not deserving of separate recognition as a party to the organization of state hospital insurance.

Norby, declaring the statement had been misinterpreted, said:

"My feeling is that in a social-economic organization such as is proposed we shouldn't make designations as to which religious sects are to have representation. I fully agree that the larger hospital groups should have that representation."

Sudeten Party Is Dissolved; Chief Termed Traitor

lein, charging him with treason and provocation of political disorder. Authorities said he would be arrested instantly if he attempted to return to Czechoslovakia from Germany, where he has taken refuge.

Some government officials urged that the whole Sudeten party be dissolved.

Marital law was extended to 16 Sudeten German communities. Thousands fled the trouble zone, some to Prague and some to Germany. Troops with gleaming bayonets patrolled streets of the main Sudeten cities. Their instructions were to crush any attempts at further disorders.

A general strike crippled Reichenberg, one of the largest industrial cities of Czechoslovakia near the German border. Sudeten German party members announced a general walkout.

The Melnick radio said irresponsible elements among German trade unions fomented strikes in several communities.

The Prague stock exchange strengthened after weakness upon news of the talks at Berchtesgaden yesterday between Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain and Chancellor Hitler.

1940 Is Reason For Scramble for Lieut. Governor

Progressive Politicians are Grooming Themselves To Succeed LaFollette

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—As Wisconsin's tangled pre-primary campaign comes to an end, there are numerous features which will make politicians watch the returns eagerly next Tuesday night. One of them is the spirited contest for lieutenant governor on the Progressive ticket.

To the uninitiated it may seem a little strange that such fierce rivalry should be shown for a job which in itself is lowly paid, unimportant, and lacks prestige. The lieutenant governor of Wisconsin gets $1500 a year, presides over the state senate six months out of two years, after which he is generally promptly forgotten.

But occasionally he gets a chance to gratify his ego by sitting in the governor's chair—when the chief executive is ill, leaves the state or dies.

Here Is Reason

But even that should not cause four candidates to appear on the Progressive ticket, since a chance at that office for quite a while this summer went begging on the Republican and Democratic tickets.

The reason, although it would be hard to get any of the ambitious contestants to admit it, is that Progressive big-wigs, and those who imagine themselves in that category, are jockeying for position in anticipation of 1940. For Progressives generally believe that by 1940 Governor LaFollette will step down, after having served four terms. That will leave the top job open for somebody else. The most logical successor will be another state officer. Since the lieutenant governorship was the only thing open this year, four candidates immediately grabbed at it.

Johnston Has Edge

Leading candidate, according to informed capitol opinion, is Olaf H. Johnson of LaFollette county, who has the longest Progressive record of the group. A former floor leader in the state senate for the late Governor Blaine, he has been an active campaigner in all Progressive campaigns, and is supposed to have strengthened himself with the rural voters of southwestern and western Wisconsin through his REA activities. He also appears to have an inside track in the executive office, judging from the number of conferences he has with LaFollette secretaries.

Runner-up, it is believed, will be Earl Munson of Cambridge, who has no other distinction in his record of public service except a brief term as secretary of the state pardon board. He has the support of Henry Gunderson, who left the lieutenant governor's job to his own devices some months ago and took a $5,000 place on the state tax commission. Following them will be, according to Progressive prognosticators, Francis Brewer, former mayor of Richland Center, and George A. Nelson of Milwaukee, 1938 Social candidate for vice president, who was pushed into the field by the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation.

Use Boilers for First Time at Senior School

The boilers at the new senior high school were put to work for the first time yesterday and produced a comfortable warmth that made students think it was spring again. Only one boiler was used and the fire was allowed to go low after the chill had been taken out of the building.

Physical examinations are scheduled for today, with the freshmen reception this evening at the home of President Barrows.

Stafford Points to Record in Congress

Milwaukee—(P)—William S. Stafford, Republican candidate for United States senator, in a political address here yesterday asked support from his party, "fair minded Democrats and independent voters of all parties" upon his record of 20 years as a former congressman.

Stafford said that from his study of all private bills reported by various committees, and from study of other proposed legislation, "I earned the title of 'watch-dog of the treasury.' The fund of legislative knowledge that I acquired, and the leadership that I attained, can only be secured by service on committees and being present always while the house is in session.

"I offer this fund of experience to the voters of our great state for continued service in their behalf."

with Herr Hitler. Only this time he has told me it is his intention to come half way to meet me."

There were other cheers and laughter when Chamberlain, explaining Hitler's offer to meet him "half way" at the next conference, said:

"He wishes to spare an old man another such a long journey."

Baldwin Not Present

Although Heston airport officials had said before Chamberlain's arrival that Earl Baldwin, his predecessor, had boarded the plane at Cologne, Baldwin was not aboard.

Apparently there has been no meeting of Chamberlain and Baldwin at Cologne, although the latter was reported in that vicinity vacationing.

Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, was among those who greeted Chamberlain at Heston.

Viscount Runciman arrived at Croydon airport from his unsuccessful peace-making mission in Prague just one minute before Chamberlain's plane landed at Heston.

The crowds cheered lustily as the prime minister finished his short speech, read from notes evidently made en route.

German Charge D'Affaires Kordt stepped forward and greeted the premier with the words:

Greeted By German

"I hope you feel that you have been successful—at any rate you have conquered the hearts of my countrymen."

Chamberlain replied:

"They were very kind to me and I had a great time."

At Croydon airport, meanwhile, Lord Runciman declared the whole Czechoslovak situation was "on the knees of the gods."

"It is a very delicate situation," he said.

Chamberlain's plane had halted only 20 minutes at Cologne on the way from Munich. During the pause he met many German notables and took tea at the airport's restaurant while a crowd of several hundred cheered him warmly.

It was indicated that Godesberg would be the scene of a second meeting between Chamberlain and Hitler within the next few days.

Lord Runciman's efforts had failed to bring peace between the Czechoslovak government and 3,500,000 autonomy-demanding Sudeten Germans whom Hitler has sworn to "save."

Chamberlain, too, had come away from his momentous talk yesterday with Hitler without any indication that he had succeeded in getting terms that might avoid war.

On the contrary, there was a feeling in German circles that Hitler stood firm in his determination to 'Work for Party,' George Asks All 'Great Democrats'

Senator Gets 246 Unit Votes to Assure His Nomination

Atlanta—(P)—United States Senator Walter F. George, renominated by a wide margin for another six-year term despite the expressed opposition of President Roosevelt, said today "The great Democrats" would be quick to cast aside bitterness of the campaign just ended "and work for the party and its principles."

Complete unofficial returns from all but one of Georgia's 158 counties in Wednesday's primary gave the veteran senator 141,922 popular votes and 246 county unit votes compared with 102,464 popular votes and 148 unit votes for his nearest rival, former Governor Eugene Talmadge.

Federal District Attorney Lawrence S. Camp, strongly endorsed by the president as a man better fitted to carry on the New Deal, was third with 78,223 popular votes and 16 unit votes.

Need 206 Units

Under the Georgia system a total of 206 county unit votes are necessary for nomination, regardless of the popular vote. Nomination is equivalent to election.

Replying to an ovation at his headquarters here last night George made no direct reference to the president, who marked him for defeat as "a died-in-the-wool conservative" who did not speak the New Deal language.

Earlier in the day George received a telegram, signed by James A. Farley, which read:

"May I, as chairman of the Democratic national committee, extend heartiest congratulations upon your nomination. Your election, of course, is assured. Writing."

Final results in a race for governor, also bitterly fought in Wednesday's primary, gave Governor E. D. Rivers a popular vote of 161,349 and a unit vote of 282. Hugh Howell 135,646 popular votes and 126 unit votes, John J. Mangham 20,101 and 2 unit votes, and Robert F. Wood 2,003 popular votes and no unit votes.

make the democracies take or leave his terms.

Chamberlain was flying from Munich to seek power for a bargain that would save Europe's imperiled peace. He planned to lay Hitler's demands quickly before his cabinet and draft an answer which he may hand Hitler personally next week.

A Britain dazed by the dramatic man-to-man hours on Obersalzberg veered toward the conviction that the tired, silver-haired premier would ask his ministers, the people and Britain's allies to answer these questions:

Shall the nations permit Hitler by annexation or by plebiscite to throw Germany's strength around the Sudeten Germans at his frontier, whom he has sworn to "save?"

Shall the dictator nations and the democracies make an all-embracing pact to weed out the roots of war?

Whatever the German Chancellor's terms, Chamberlain received them at a time when the outright demand for annexure by Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten German leader, and unflinching fighting among the Sudetens stiffened the Czech nation in strong steps to resist.

Samp Says Relief Is Becoming Major Industry in U. S.

Bellet—(P)—Edward J. Samp, candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States senate, declared last night the business of relief rapidly is becoming the major American industry.

"I have never at any time been opposed to providing adequate relief for those who are in need of assistance," he said. "What I object to is the manner in which it is being administered by the federal bureaucrats in Washington."

"Literally billions of dollars are being squandered and wasted, yet the man who needs help is not getting the benefit of them. It is a shameful truth that only 61 cents out of every dollar is going to the relief client—the rest lines the pockets of a gang of parasitic ward heelers who pose as social workers and administrators and supervisors."

Hitler Demands Annexation of Sudeten Region

negotiations, there was a popular belief that some hitch had developed.

A more optimistic outlook for favorable settlement of the fate of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German minority population because of talks between the British premier and Germany's chancellor prevailed today in Berlin political and diplomatic circles.

Reports of the conversations at Chancellor Hitler's Berchtesgaden retreat reaching here this morning apparently caused the change from last night's gloomy atmosphere.

Generally well-informed circles said the chancellor had pointed out to Premier Chamberlain the necessity of settling the Sudeten problem once and for all.

These circles said also that latest developments in the Sudeten regions of Czechoslovakia—fighting, the demand of Sudeten Leader Konrad Henlein for annexation of the Czech German areas by Germany, and the Czech government's decision to charge him with treason—had strengthened the fuhrer's demand that if France and England were willing to do anything to preserve peace it must be done quickly.

Hope for Settlement

The belief was expressed here that the Czech actions definitely had ruled out any chance of a plebiscite, by which the Sudetens could vote to go under Nazi rule. But, despite this, it was felt the way had been opened for definite steps to resolve the matter finally to a decision.

A far different feeling was in vogue last night.

Chancellor Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, referred to Czechoslovakia's martial law enforcement in Sudeten land as an "open declaration of war on the German people," and continued that, in view of the many Sudeten victims, "it would be irresponsible of us to stand by idle any longer, without putting a stop to the uproar."

Kaws Will Meet Sheboygan North Eleven Saturday

Veterans Available for Six Positions on Lit-
tle's Team

Kaukauna—With veterans available in six positions Kaukauna football fans will get their first look at Coach Paul E. Little's 1938 eleven here tomorrow afternoon when the Kaws clash with North High of Sheboygan. Three of last year's reserves and two youths out for the first time probably will form the rest of the starting lineup.

Today the Kaws will brush up on their signals and may even do a little heavier work, as the squad has not come along as fast as in other years. Tomorrow against what is expected to be a bigger Sheboygan team Little will learn just who he must depend on in this year's conference race.

Four of the six returning veterans will start in the backfield. Co-captain Bob Nielsen, Clayton Watson, Carl Giordana and Carl Kobussen are the four who constitute a backfield that other teams can hardly surpass. Nielsen is most valuable for his blocking, and when he's in the lineup the going is a lot easier for the other Kaukauna backs. Kobussen, though light, has plenty of drive, and does most of the plunging for the team.

Giordana is faster. Giordana started in his freshman year last season, and has been doing quite a bit of ball carrying in practice, in addition to throwing passes. Watson is an all-around man, and is the best drop kicker on the team. Three reserve backs who will see some action are George Stefens, Willis Ranquette and Bob Danner. Ranquette and Danner are frosh, while Stefens, small but speedy, is a sophomore. Another back, Ralph Doering, has a bad knee and will not play.

Co-captain Leroy Frank at tackle is expected to be a big work in the line. Bill Alger at end is the only other returning lineman from last year. Kelly Wolfe, sub center last season, gets first call for the pivot job. Both of the guards are rather inexperienced, Cliff Femal seeing some action last year, but Bob Dougherty, a senior, playing football for the first time. With Sherman Powers handicapped by a sprained ankle John Wandell, another senior newcomer, has been shifted to Powers' tackle job and probably will start there, with Leo Rohan taking over Wandell's end position. If Powers should be able to play Wandell will go back to end.

Bicycle Safety Plan Is Ready for Council Action

Kaukauna—If all goes according to schedule Kaukauna will have a bicycle safety ordinance next Thursday. For Charles Clune, chairman of a committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to supervise the organization of a bicycle club here, reported to the members this week that, after conference with the police department, the measure would be given to the councilmen for approval Wednesday at their regular meeting.

Organizations of bicycle safety clubs is part of the national youth program of the veterans. Boys and girls from 7 to 18 are eligible for membership.

The ordinance makes the rules of the safety club a part of the city's laws, but enforcement of them is left up to the club members, through officers and patrolmen selected for that purpose. Cases are tried in the club's own court, and the maximum penalty is taking away the right to ride for 30 days.

To Reduce Accidents
The purpose of the club is to instill the dangers of riding into young minds, and to cut down the increasing number of traffic accidents involving bicycles. Bicycle riders each year become automobile drivers, and if they are taught to be "safety minded" early they will carry the thought into later life.

Clune and Chief of Police James E. McFadden will arrange the proper ordinance with the ordinance committee of the common council. Walter Kilgas is chairman of the group, with Theodore L. Seggink and Otto M. Ludtke other members.

A strong point of the enactment is that riders who do not belong to the club are technically liable to prosecution in the city's courts, so that membership is encouraged. A 100 per cent allegiance is anticipated.

After the council approves the ordinance, a meeting of all riders will be called. Application cards will be issued, to which parents' signatures must be secured, the cards to be returned at the next meeting. A regular meeting time will be determined at the first meeting, and at the next session officers will be named and installed, and the club will begin to function.

5 Lyceum Programs on High School Schedule

Kaukauna—Five lyceum programs have been scheduled for presentation before Kaukauna High school students this week, through the services of the university extension division at Madison. Mussolini's Tyroleans Are Just Like Sudetens

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

New York—There are points of confusion in the acts and utterances of Hitler and Mussolini.

Hitler declares a passionate sympathy for the oppressed Sudeten minority in Czechoslovakia. He is particularly indignant because they have been forbidden to sing songs of disloyalty to the nation of which they are unwillingly a part. He is furious because they were forbidden to wear white socks, which were the identification mark of a seditious society organized by his agent, Konrad Henlein.

But in the territory which Italy carved out of Austria at the close of the World War, as her price for betraying the German Kaiser, there are still 250,000 Austrians who are captives of a foreign conqueror and whose human rights have been ruthlessly denied. Mussolini forbade and suppressed the singing of German songs, even innocent folk songs, in the captive Tyrol before Czechoslovakia found it necessary to put down disorderly demonstrations against the government in which the singing was not an exercise of innocent pleasure, but a warlike situation. Mussolini, literally, even forbade the captured Austrians in his conquered territory to yodel and they also were forbidden to speak their native language. Their children were compelled to study the Italian language, signs in the native language of the country were removed from the territory and replaced by signs in Italian. Only three years ago, captive Austrians of the race which Hitler described as "not created by God to be victimized by a foreign power as a result of the Versailles reconstruction of states," were literally, physically, dragged off from their homes, impressed in the army of "a foreign power," and sent to Abyssinia. It would appear that this was a fairly close approach to victimization by a foreign power of captives as truly German as the Sudetens of Czechoslovakia. Czechoslovakia has fought no foreign wars and far from attempting to victimize the Sudetens in any manner, even remotely approaching the Italian brutality toward the captured Tyroleans, has preferred to excuse the Sudeten Germans from service in her armies because the treacherous movements which Hitler promoted among them made them untrustworthy.

Duce Forbade Them to Wear White Socks

Mussolini also forbade his captive Austrians to wear white socks, as a badge of rebellion, and stamped out efforts to adopt other marks of identification on the hats, coat-lapels and neck ties. He has been doing this for 15 years.

For many years after the war, the Sudetens enjoyed the benefits of orderly government in Czechoslovakia, while Germany was shaken by recurrent disturbances and throughout that time the Sudetens were glad to be protected from conditions in Germany. At no time since the end of the war have the captives in Italy enjoyed similar benefits. The Sudetens were treated as citizens. Mussolini's Austrians were treated as captives. Later, as a matter of policy, they are less firmly opposed but they are still denied rights which the Sudetens have never lacked. They, too, are and always have been, forbidden to sing the Horst Wessel song and Deutschland Uber Alles and, unlike the Sudetens, at this moment, they are required to conduct their affairs in a language foreign to them.

If Rescue Is in Order Tyroleans Should Be First

The Sudetens never were any more German than Mussolini's quarter of a million Tyrolean captives. They were subjects of Austria-Hungary before the war and it was the same "Versailles reconstruction of states" which placed the Tyroleans within the new boundaries of Italy. If a few Sudetens have been killed in disorders provoked by Hitler through Henlein, many more of those whom Hitler embraces as blood brothers were shot by Mussolini blackshirts, police and border patrols, as they attempted to affect personally an

THE POST-CRESCENT REFUSED TO PRINT THIS ANSWER IN THE "PEOPLES' FORUM."

Appleton, Wisconsin
September 12, 1938

To the Editor of the Appleton Post-Crescent:
Progressives, no doubt, were amazed to see your editorial entitled "Ekern for the Progressives" as appeared on Tuesday evening, September 6, 1938, in the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Since when has the Appleton Post-Crescent become concerned in the election of a Progressive? Your choice of Mr. Ekern over that of Mr. Amlic should give every Progressive voter cause to think seriously about the coming campaign and should make those Progressives, who had any thought of voting for Mr. Ekern, think twice before marking the ballot for the office of United States Senator.

When a candidate like Mr. Ekern appeals to the reactionary press such as your paper, then there is good reason to vote the other way. We feel sure that the Progressive voters, who have read your editorial, will not accept the leadership of the Appleton Post-Crescent as to whom they will support for the office of United States Senator. Although you lauded Mr. Ekern for the Progressives, we ask has the Appleton Post-Crescent definitely forsaken the Republican and Democratic parties?

We are always glad to see new converts to the Progressive cause. The Post-Crescent, however, will have to demonstrate a more sincere and consistent Progressive policy before we are likely to accept your choice of candidates on our ticket. Progressives now more than ever before need to support Thomas R. Amlic for United States Senator. Mr. Amlic has had the united support of all Progressives in the 1st Congressional District and has been elected to Congress three times by his constituents. During each election when he ran for the office of Congressman for his District both Governor Philip F. LaFollette and Senator Robert M. LaFollette campaigned for his election. Certainly Mr. Amlic's qualifications to serve the Progressives in public office have not changed for the worse. He has on the other hand distinguished himself as an outstanding Progressive leader. All classes of people admire and respect Mr. Amlic's deep sincerity and devotion to the problems affecting the farmer, worker and the common man in general.

As an ex-service man, Mr. Amlic has always voted in the interests of the veterans. He had the honor of serving his post as commander.

Mr. Amlic is a man of ideas and has the ability to express them. The farmers and the workers of this State will make no mistake to nominate Thomas R. Amlic on September 20th for the office of United States senator on the Progressive ticket. We have no hesitancy in expressing the hope that Mr. Amlic will have the united support of the Progressives in this victory.

Respectfully yours,

Primaries Show Roosevelt Can't Always Command

Lawrence Expects President to Ignore Individual Contests Now

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Nothing very new or startling has been uncovered by the primary elections this week. For some time, it has been an accepted rule in politics that a president cannot transfer his strength to another candidate unless both are on the same ticket in the same election. Likewise, it has been an accepted rule that, when a president or any other outside influence interferes in a local contest, the resentment against intervention is apt to obscure the issues and create an altogether different issue.

Few people who know Maryland politics, for instance, will doubt that Representative Lewis is much stronger than the vote indicated. Any man who has served the public interest as well as Mr. Lewis is these many years would have fared far better without the president's help than with it.

Likewise, in the three-cornered race in Georgia won by Senator George, the results show that even such a bitter foe of the Roosevelt administration as former Governor Talmadge made a better showing than did the hand-picked candidate of the administration, Lawrence Camp. Here again it was apparent that the people appraised the candidates in their own way and without regard to the advice of Mr. Roosevelt or any of the other New Dealers in Washington.

'Parties are Parties'

The president's "purge" campaign has been a very bad flop so far as the voting results are concerned. Whether it will serve to scare some of the spineless members of congress or whether it will give some of them new courage remains to be determined. Certainly, from a practical political standpoint, the president may well wash his hands of the whole purge business now. He can readily say to the amateurs at his side, the left wingers who deal in theoretical rather than practical politics: "Well, I've tried out your theory but parties are parties, and congressional contests are a law unto themselves."

It will be interesting to see whether the president soothes the wounds of the primary campaigns. He doesn't have to do that in the southern states, where nomination is equivalent to an election, but he certainly will have to support Senator Tydings in Maryland, where there's a susceptible Republican vote. The chances are he will ignore the individual contests now and make a general appeal for a Democratic congress, defending the all-embracing nature of his appeal with the argument that there are many more New Dealers than anti-New Dealers running on the Democratic ticket and that the party label can, therefore, be supported in its entirety.

This does not mean that Mr. Roosevelt may not here and there support a liberal Republican of the Norris type, but, on the whole, his energies may be expected to be employed to help keep the Democratic majority in both houses of congress. From now on, attention will be centered on Republican versus Democratic contests instead of conservative-liberal cleavage within the Democratic party.

Elections Largely Local

How many seats in the house will the Republicans win? This is an off-year election and no presidential candidates are on the same ticket with the congressional nominees. As happened in the primaries, this makes the election very largely a local affair, without very much emphasis on national issues except as the interests of a section or region may color the controversy. Various estimates have been made as to Republican victories in the November test. It would seem that a gain of 25 to 30 Republican seats would be a considerable set-back for the New Deal because of the trend which it would show for 1940. Anything above 25 or 30 would mean a deep-seated reverse from 1936 and would be regarded as very significant.

STUDENTS FROM APPLETON, WEYAUWEGA AMONG HONOR FRESHMEN

Among the students whose high school scholastic standings were the best in this year's freshman class at Lawrence college were the five young people of Appleton and the vicinity shown above with Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, president of the college, who were honored with special mention as freshmen week activities got under way Thursday. From left to right, they are Stuart Jones, Weyauwega; Miss Mildred Toll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Toll, 519 N. Sampson street; Dr. Barrows; John Killoren, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Killoren, 823 W. Franklin street; Miss Fern Bauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bauer, 507 N. Mary street; and Dexter Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Wolfe, 414 N. Union street. significant of an underlying protest against New Dealism.

Business men who have felt for some time that only the election of an independent congress would give the economic system the stimulus it needs have derived some encouragement from the president's failure to carry the various primary contests in which he made a personal issue against incumbent senators. There can be no doubt now that, even in his own party, Mr. Roosevelt cannot always command a majority.

If this indicates a nucleus of Democratic voters which may cast their ballots for Republican nominees as against rubber stamp New Dealers who were unopposed for their respective nominations, a big upset may be developing for the administration. Unemployment will hurt the administration candidates in the industrial districts of the north, though the New Deal is struggling desperately to overcome this obstacle by putting more persons on the WPA rolls than at any previous time in the last five years. After election, a considerable drop in the WPA rolls may be anticipated.

Pensions Group in Bi-Monthly Meet

District Group Convened For First Time in Waupaca

Waupaca—The bi-monthly meeting of district Pension Departments association was held Wednesday in Waupaca for the first time. The session was an all-day affair held in the circuit court room, and was attended by forty-five persons from the several counties included in this district. A luncheon was served to the group at noon at Hotel Delevan.

Judge Gad Jones, Wautoma, president of the association, conducted the meeting which evolved itself into an open forum before it closed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Among the speakers present were Judge A. M. Schneller, Waupaca; Marie Seales, Madison, of the legal department of the state pension department; Marshall Keith, Madison, district supervisor, and Miss Cynthia Stokes, field supervisor of the state department of dependent children's aid.

County judges, particularly those who administer pensions in addition to their regular duties, advisory committees and pension administrators were aided by members of the state department in the exchanging of ideas and discussion of problems that are similar to each county.

Shawano will be host to the next meeting of the association.

With Tydings Fight Over, Roosevelt Purge Attempts are Nearly Finished

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—The administration fight on Senator Tydings in Maryland—the most bitter of the whole purge campaign—is over. He will be accepted as the regular party nominee and will be entitled to the standard courtesies and assistance which the Democratic national committee will give to other party candidates.

Nobody here is apt to be oversolicitous, because there is quite a bitter feeling about Tydings which will rankle within the New Deal for a long time. Neither is it probable that Tydings will have the cheek to ask for much help. But diplomatic relations will not be broken off. From now on the amenities of one family—if not one happy family—will be observed. The election of Tydings in November is in no serious doubt.

There had been talk of running a liberal Democratic candidate against him. Also some of the supporters of Congressman Lewis felt so strongly that they were tentatively looking over the record of the Republican senatorial nominee, Judge Oscar Leser, who is bidding for Democratic votes. He bolted Hoover to support Al Smith in 1928 and he has held appointments from Maryland Democratic administrations. But there will be little material residue from this post-election feeling and little, if any, organized effort to bolt Tydings, although a considerable number of individuals may refuse to go along.

This development marks the end of the purge. In no other fight was there enough bitterness to cause a direct party break, if the kind of campaign Tydings conducted didn't cause one.

Roosevelt may be expected to continue his fight to impress his viewpoint on the party but without going to the extent that has marked the current eastern primaries. The fight against Congressman O'Connor in New York will be continued, the only remaining contest in which the administration has its hatchet out.

Roosevelt's Crime Was Trying It in the Open

Quite generally through the administration and the national party organization, the conclusion is that the purge method failed and was a tactical mistake. That is without conceding any of the stuff about "invasion" and carpetbagging. The right of the president to seek within his own party men who are loyal to the general program, and to get rid of those who want to wear the label while voting steadily with the opposition, can not be questioned except for political campaign purposes.

The method used, however, has plainly affronted a large number of voters, as for instance those in Maryland who, while regarding Congressman Lewis as the more desirable man, nevertheless voted for Tydings solely because Roosevelt said he didn't want him.

Raymond Clapper

Wagner persists in his present refusal to leave the senate.

The play now is to let the purge fade out of public memory as quickly as possible, concentrate on pulling the party together in preparation for the coming session of congress. There, it is feared, the administration will encounter a strong backfire resulting from the resentment of the purges and their anti-Roosevelt friends. All of the diplomacy and skill the administration has will be needed to prevent Roosevelt's last two years from generating into a war of stalemate with a stubborn congress.

That's looking at the blackest side of it, and not counting in the resiliency which has brought Roosevelt back time after time when it looked as though his enemies had him down for keeps. And of course, news from Europe may change everything.

THIS MAN EKERN

Intermittently over the years the Badgerite has viewed items of news from Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky—to name the most recent instances—and which concerned the looting of insurance companies and the consequent thievery visited upon long lists of innocent stockholders and longer lists of more innocent policyholders.

And the resident of Wisconsin has been sorely puzzled. Why did these things have to occur? And, stranger, why did they never occur in Wisconsin?

The fault with the people in respect to the men who have served them well is that they take them and their creations as a matter of course, never missing the water until the artesian well gives out. Insurance has been on a high plane in Wisconsin because Herman L. Ekern served in the office of Commissioner of Insurance for six years, learned of weaknesses that might develop into floods, studied deeply into malpractices that had developed in the insurance field in other states, and then wrote for and recommended to the legislature of Wisconsin carefully planned laws, highly constructive in their nature, designed to safeguard honest investments, protect policy holders, and outwit and defeat the wolves that meander the insurance field but found there was no feast to be obtained in Wisconsin.

It is men like Mr. Ekern who help materially to build a great government. However hot the campaign may become no honest person at all familiar with Ekern's record will ever be found to dispute the integrity and the high ability of this man.

The next question is whether the people who vote Progressive are smart enough to select from among their ranks for high office the one of clear ability and just as clear loyalty.

A SPEECH IS STILL A SPEECH

Herr Hitler's recent address was a mighty effort judged by Nazi standards. But to one even part way familiar with the facts it was a conglomerate piece of rant soaked and sodden with deceit and hypocrisy.

Carefully reading it over with the detached interest that should accompany the effort to appraise it as the German people heard it we find the Czechs a mob of thugs and oppressors and their republic somehow turned into that abhorrent thing known as an imperial aggressor.

Certainly these Czechs have unusual courage to amuse themselves by beating, kicking and killing peaceful Sudeten Germans while the great German army nearly two million strong is watching and ready to spring but a few miles away.

The unavoidable conclusion from the Hitler address was that Germany had been trespassed upon. But we find the Sudeten region was never part of the Reich. Although the residents of this area date the arrival of their forefathers back as far as 600 years those very forefathers may have been attempting to escape from some 14th century Hitler, else why did they come to Bohemia? Thereafter, it is true, they became part of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, but from that fact their title does not fall to Berlin merely because Austria did.

There is no good reason however for us in America to become too livid over the sort of speech Herr Hitler delivered. Unhappily we are not entirely free from the same kind of public men. Hitler arrived where he is through finding a suitable number of goats to chase around the German landscape, and although anything approaching a fair and impartial history must place him low in the cooler estimate of mankind it is noticeable that his declaration leaves the image and impression of a sad-faced, gentle and kindly man a little wearied by the misconduct of others but determined to be patient and to conquer with his righteous indignation supplemented by Krupp goods but only if stabbed in the back by his vicious and unprincipled foes.

DON'T LET THE COURTS TRY HIM

The mayor of Philadelphia, one Wilson, has been indicted by a grand jury for willfully neglecting to enforce the laws against gambling. He has responded with the typical plea that he is the subject of "political persecution." It is a greatly frayed and outmoded method of defense but somehow it seems to convince those who were never able to pass out of the fourth grade.

An indictment, of course, is not a conviction, but it does mean much more than a calm pool; and the indictment of a metropolitan mayor who has just been a candidate for nomination, to the United States senate means that, irrespective of the final outcome, a substantial amount of apparently good testimony had been presented under oath in order to secure it. And now what shall we say about Governor Earle's plan to have indicted public officials investigated by themselves, state officials by the legislature, and, if the principle were fairly extended, a mayor by a city council?

And while Mr. Green of the AFL is accurately characterizing the endorsements by John L. Lewis of candidates for political office as "the kiss of death" he may find it convenient to add to that designation that grand juries may find it advisable to investigate the records of Lewis-approved candidates since this mayor of Philadelphia was one of them.

But it seems that whomsoever the Democrats were to nominate for senator in Pennsylvania was due for a grand jury investigation since Wilson and Earle were the principal contenders. That is nothing strange, however, in Pennsylvania. Keystone staters already have one Democratic senator in the person of Mr. Guffey who was indicted for embezzlement of great sums of public property entrusted to his hands and saved only by the kindly nod of Attorney General Daugherty who recognized a fraternity member in distress.

THOSE ON RELIEF

After the present depression had made itself felt in severe fashion the magazine Life, which deals in pictures, published some pages of excellent photographs taken inside the homes that had been stricken, pictures of young families just starting out in life, good people, clear-eyed and vigorous, men anxious to work, wives willing to cut corners, children wondering what it was all about—and all on relief, forced to relief by grim and relentless necessity.

They were pictures that would stir the soul of any American for their struggle has been as patient and weary though not so glorious as those depicted upon great canvases our national painters have made for public buildings to forever reflect the magnificent efforts our armies have made and dyed red with their blood.

It is an unforgettable picture presented, too, in many forms almost daily to those who direct the operation of our business and industrial plants for the stream of those willing and ambitious Americans seeking an honorable chance to work is unending.

If the lords and rulers in the land could only see first-hand this picture and be struck by the terrible responsibility they bear, the undeniable responsibility for this situation, it is hard to think they would not be moved to abandon plans that involve parlor theories and their own stubborn pride and come down from the high horses upon which they have been parading and embrace the old-fashioned but sound notions upon which all prosperity has ever been built anywhere, that is a recognition of every honest effort, that work is made by sense and confidence, and the peculiar isms that are glibly built of a chaff of words never yet harvested a grain of wheat nor baked a loaf of bread.

The condition of those placed upon relief because of the national abandonment of and sneering at the traditions and principles of our fathers is heartbreaking. The political masters are wrecking the spirit without which there is no full life to any mortal.

A fair and unbiased appraisal of the result these mistaken ideas have wrought should be enough to obtain that sober reflection of men in public life that leads to an admission and confession of error and a resolution to reform.

COWS HAPPY TOO

There have been frequent news dispatches in the last few months concerning the improved status of cattle raisers in the west since rains ended the long drought. The higher standard of living made possible by better grazing and better crops has been commented on. There has been discussion of the additional supply of meat on eastern markets and resulting lower meat prices in comparison with drought years. This is all right and proper. It is legitimate news.

But until a few days ago almost nothing had been said about the improved status of the cow herself. The New York Times, however, recently advised its readers that the grass allotted a single cow in the last couple of years in the Kansas area has been as much as twenty acres and that the cattle are fat and thrifty. What a contrast there must be between the fat, contented animal grazing over twenty acres of tall, green grass and the bony, half starved animals seen wandering over the barren "dust bowl" in news pictures of a few years ago.

One could hardly assign a reporter the task of interviewing a Kansas yearling concerning his standard of living as compared with that his parents have known but if a reporter capable of understanding the bovine language could be found, his story would make interesting reading.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell
I LOVE YOU MORE:
When every pathway leads straight to the sun,
And no dark shadows crowd your evening sky;

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—I don't deny having one or two idiosyncrasies myself, but that fellow up in Westchester has me stopped—but definitely.

He has a big estate—big house, lots of shrubs and acres of lawn. He has a million dollars. He has four cars, and maybe a yacht. He has everything; but he can't keep a butler longer than a month.

I would never have known about it except that I was driving lazily along the highway and came upon a sad-faced, lean-figured fellow who, I knew immediately, was a butler. He was carrying a bulky valise. I stopped the car and offered him a ride, which he was glad enough to get, I could see.

He told me about the rich man who couldn't keep butlers.

"I should have known better than to have gone there in the first place, sir," he said, apologetically. "I had heard that other butlers had left suddenly. I should have known, sir. But I have a bit of stubbornness in me, if you don't mind, sir. I am the type that does not believe there is a fire until I have stuck my hand in it—the kind who does not believe a knife will cut until I see the blood a-streaming."

"So I accepted the position. The master was a very nice gentleman, sir; I still say that. Just eccentric, sir; exceedingly eccentric."

"In what way?" I inquired, as the car swung around a curve.

"Knives, sir. Knives!" the ex-butler said in a voice that quavered.

"You mean he swallows knives?" I asked.

"Not swallows them, sir. Throws them. Throws them at people; and especially at butlers, sir. He loves to throw knives at butlers."

"And so you resigned," I said. It seemed logical.

"Yes, sir. But not immediately, sir. I am a man of more than average courage, if I do say it, beg your pardon, sir. I was at Vimy Ridge, and I once ran a man through with a blade myself—in the war, of course, sir."

"But the master whose service I have just quit carried the affair too far, if you don't mind my saying so. He was cracked on knife throwing—like a man in the circus. He had a secret conceit that he would one day be the greatest knife-thrower in the world. Rather silly, to my way of thinking, but of course I am just a butler."

"The first few days were quiet enough. The master was very friendly. It is odd I suspected nothing. Then he showed me the room in his garage where he practiced throwing—a board against the wall, full of marks where the knives had gone in."

"He began throwing them—little knives. I must say he was very good. He almost always hit approximately where he intended. Approximately."

"Then he asked would I mind standing against the board. He said there was absolutely no danger—not the slightest, sir; and besides, he was using very small knives. I could not think of any reason at the moment for refusing without seeming to be a bouncer. I did ask him if he was sure it would be all right, and he said it absolutely would, and positively."

"I must say that he was most careful and accurate. I confess I was frightened, but after the first few shudders as the knives dug into the wood around me, I became numb and didn't mind."

"The next day it was the same, sir, except that the knives were larger. It went on like that for days, with the knives getting larger and larger."

"It is not pleasant, if you'll forgive my mentioning it, sir, to stand against a board and face a man who is standing with a handful of knives behind his back and throw in your direction with the force of a javelin. I tried to be nonchalant, but the thud of the big blades burying themselves dangerously close to my jugular and other veins turned me finally into a nervous wreck."

He wiped the perspiration from his brow.

"I hope you will not think me a coward and a rotter, sir," he said at last, "but I made a decision today. I decided that knife-throwing is all right for them as likes it, sir, but that I am too sensitive for such things. This cut on my right ear, sir, helped me make up my mind. The master said I moved; that his aim was perfect but that I moved and therefore it was my fault. Nevertheless, it bled horribly. Blood is blood, if I may say so, sir."

I have been upset about the matter ever since. I never before realized what butlers have to put up with—particularly butlers in Westchester.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

A committee of past worthy presidents of Fraternal Order of Eagles was appointed at a meeting of the Appleton aerie at Eagles hall by Elmer Koerner, president, to make plans for the Silver Jubilee which the aerie was to celebrate in a few months. Members were Charles Fose, John Goodland, Dr. A. E. Adsit, A. G. Koch, Oscar Kunitz, Henry S. Loselyoung, Edward C. Tornow, Judge F. V. Heinemann, Andrew Schiltz, Sr., William Koehnke, J. H. Fiedler, Otto Tilly, Francis J. Rooney, Frank J. Huntz, Peter Rademacher and Joseph Koehn. Past secretaries who were members of the committee included Frank Schneider, Dudley Pierce and Theodore Berg.

J. H. Fiedler was reelected president of Equitable Fraternal union Thursday night at a meeting of the lodge at Odd Fellows hall. Mr. Fiedler served as president the preceding two years.

The Appleton High school football team was to open its 1928 season Sept. 29 at Two Rivers.

Chris E. Mullen was elected president of the St. Thomas Young Men's society at the annual meeting held that week. Nicholas Nooyen was named vice president, the Rev. A. J. Schueler, treasurer; George Barry, financial secretary; Jay Cosgrove, recording secretary, and Victor Woehler, custodian.

Not only was the attendance mark at the Fox River Valley fair broken but the previous record of 5,700 was nearly doubled the previous day when Governor Appleton day drew 10,656 patrons. Credit for the huge success of the event was given to Secretary D. P. Steinberg. Mr. and Mrs. Moses Bender had returned from a European trip.

Karl Klotzch was home from Madison for a week's visit. He had been employed in Madison during the summer and was to return to his studies at the University of Wisconsin next week.

A Bystander
In Washington

While Freston Grover is on vacation, persons prominent in official and political life of the nation and in journalism are substituting for him. Today's guest column is written—

BY MILO M. THOMPSON
Chief of the Washington Bureau of The Associated Press

Washington—If John M. Hamilton, the Republican national chairman, was wrought up over what he called the "strange argument of President Roosevelt," head of the Democratic party, in behalf of political morality at the primaries, what of the typical practical politicians of either party who are not party leaders?

Their job, as they will tell you and have told us, is not to determine rights and wrongs but to get things done politically. To them, the high morality involved lies in the rightness of objectives, not methods.

Theirs is the task of influencing public opinion and getting out the vote. They try to make news, to stir up talk, to get influential persons to speak effectively, to make things happen for political effect, to turn public indecision to decision and, last but not least, to herd the voters to the polls.

Sanctity Of The Booth
They argue that by whatever means they accomplish their ends, all is made moral by the fact that when the voter is alone in the voting booth, he can do what he pleases without let, hindrance or anybody's knowledge.

But the President questioned that. He said at Hyde Park that the situation is probably not moral if the voter happens to be a Republican voter in a Democratic voting booth.

This leaves the practical politician wondering what a Republican voter is and what a Democratic booth may be. He knows that there are many states in which a voter is permitted to choose his party freely for the purpose of a current election. In such a state, the voter gets either a joint ballot, both ballots or whatever ballot he asks for. He names his party at the polling place or in the booth and may make up his mind at the last minute.

And there is no Democratic booth, no Republican booth, but a common booth used by partisans of any color. Even in states which require party registration, where voters are checked against the party lists when they appear to vote, it is often easy to change one's allegiance just before election day.

Welcome Stranger
The practical politicians are not unhappy about that. If they are touting a man for nomination, they want to get any legitimate voter they can interest into the primaries to help nominate him. And if they can interest a Republican in a Democratic contest and bring him into the party at ordinary time, they like it. They figure the Republican may follow through for the man he likes in the general election. But whether he does or not, he will have helped build up a significantly large party primary vote, which is supposed to be a potent influence in a campaign.

They are inclined to ask where they are going to look for converts except in the ranks of the people who have had contrary political inclinations previously.

The President based his comment about morality on the situation in Idaho. He had been informed that Republicans marked Democratic ballots is sufficient number to defeat Senator Pope. That, of course, is unprovable because the marking of ballots was secret. Furthermore, Idaho has the open type of primary and invites a voter to enter what primary he pleases by giving him the ballots of all parties in one.

What interests at least one of the practical politicians here, however, is how possibly to distinguish a Republican in such a state. Perhaps these Idaho voters were independent voters.

This man called attention to a statement President Woodrow Wilson once made:

"Politics in this country does not depend any longer upon the regular members of either party. There are not enough regular Republicans in this country to take and hold national power; and I must immediately add there are not enough regular Democrats in this country to do it either. This country is guided and its policy is determined by the independent voter."

I say to the independent voter, you have got us in the realm of your hand. I do not happen to be one of your number but I recognize your supremacy because I read the election returns."

The question of political morality which puzzles our practical politician is this: If President Wilson was right and the situation is still as he described it, the former Republicans who voted against Senator Pope may well have been part of this supreme group of independents. If so, they either had to enter at this primary time the party of their recent choice or leave to a handful of regular Republicans on one hand, and of secret Democrats on the other, the selection of nominees.

Theirs would then be merely to choose between the two at general election time. And where the reels would be the political morality of that?

For the most part the practical politicians heretofore leave such delicate questions to the theorists who in the councils of party, they know that there must be a great body of shifting irregulars in the land, else how would one explain Harding and Hoover landlides followed by a couple of Roosevelt landlides in the same political generation.

And whether or not the party leaders would derive these un-theorized voters of a primary vote, they choose to go on broadening political feed and raising such votes as they may without looking too hard at their teeth and pedigrees or their party records.

Somebody, they say has to get things done—politically.

ECONOMIC BOYCOTT AS A WEAPON

Editor Post-Crescent: I take issue with your editorial of September 9th, 1938, entitled "A Fruit of the Jewish Boycott."

Your major premise is stated in the first paragraph as follows: "Italy's adoption of a race war against the Jews is plausible only because incited so to do by Germany."

There has been no report of the facts to substantiate such a conclusion. As a matter of fact, you later state that the boycott has proven to be a "thorn in Hitler's side."

Does logic then lead us to a conclusion that Mussolini would deliberately invite a similar thorn? I think not. Recent months have demonstrated that international treaties, friendships and conduct are dictated by strict and hard opportunism. I think, rather, that recent developments in Italy follow the routine of a hard-pressed dictator. As early as June, 1934, a rather comprehensive article appearing in "Current History" revealed that the Italian dictator was in a precarious position because of troubled economic conditions at home, and foreign correspondents at the time reported similarly. The collapse of Il Duce was halted by the formula of dictators: Coercion internally; diversion of the public attention to a major foreign issue (such as the Ethiopian war and the intervention in Spain); and when it becomes dangerous to further coerce internally, then the addition of an attack upon a minority small enough to make it suicidal for that minority to resist.

Your observation that "had there been no Jewish boycott of Germany, there is every good reason to believe that the unwarranted torture of these innocent people would have been abandoned long since," is, in my opinion, glaringly inaccurate and is most certainly refuted by Hitler's own statements in "My Struggle."

On the invitation of a minister I had occasion to address a Protestant congregation in the village of Cottage Grove, Wisconsin, in the early days of the Hitler regime I predicted at that time that, if we were to accept the statements of Hitler as being bona fide, the attack upon Jews was merely a beginning—that the attack was more fundamental—that it was intended and would be executed as an attack upon the moral and ethical codes of our day, and that Catholics and Protestants would not be spared. The prediction has proven to be true. The attack has heralded a return to the brutality of paganism and the suffocating intolerance of the dark ages.

I do believe that Mussolini in his present difficulties with the masses (unrest has recently taken the form of demonstration against the government's adulteration of wheat flour) has concluded that the fundamental precepts of Judaism and Christianity had best be stricken from his domain, for ideologies of brotherly love and peace can only thrive in and must lead to democracy.

Since Hitler has met with success in such an attack, Mussolini now embarks upon it. This does not spring from any boycott, but from a belief that such policy is politically good. Coming months I am sure, will reveal that this attack again will go beyond Jews and that, as in Germany, this attack will prove to be only a beginning.

Your conclusion seems to be that we must appease dictators at any cost in order to save ourselves; that we must cringe and fawn before them lest we arouse their wrath. I have, of course, disagreed with your entire logic, and I emphatically disagree with your conclusion.

If a man and September 17 is your natal day, if you will remember: "Forgiveness is better than revenge." Your way in life will be made easier and your prospects for success are bound to be much brighter. Your Birthday

"VIRGO"

If September 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m., and from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m., from 4:45 to 6:45 p. m., and from 10:45 p. m. until midnight.

This is a very inauspicious time for harboring a vindictive feeling or to try to make it a day of reckoning for a real or fancied grievance. Any display of magnanimity will most likely result in the person exhibiting it having many regrets for you do not misconstruct the attitude and words of anyone you argue with this day. Springing unexpected demands or startling statements, will be an unwise and tactless thing for anyone to do. It might not be good judgment to be in anyway hasty about throwing cold water on any form of enthusiasm. If possible participate in some kind of social activity, for this is likely to be the medium through which much pleasure is apt to become available. Chirography may, in some way, play an important part in this day's business affairs, so be sure that your handwriting is legible, and that your signature is not affixed to any document that you have not read carefully.

Married and engaged couples, and those having hopes of soon becoming betrothed, must not over or underestimate their ability to do anything that might contribute to their mutual happiness.

If a woman and September 17 is your birthday, your home life will probably be a very cheerful, joyous and sensible mode of living. You may attain an influential position in your community's political or social affairs. You ought to be a most gracious hostess, being able to make your guests feel perfectly at ease. Writing, painting, singing, designing, selling or lecturing are among the many activities that might enable you to become very prosperous.

The child born on September 17, ought to have a very receptive mind, the instincts of leadership and a magnetic personality. This youngster's future seems promising.

Castor Oil. This excellent airplane lubricant has on questionable virtue which just preserves its place in materia medica: When it is all through nauseating, griping and purging it exerts a binding influence and, therefore it is still prescribed by quaint practitioners in cases of acute gastrointestinal upset associated with diarrhea—the purge sweeps out the offending food or food residue, then locks up the bowel. That's a fine, logical theory, but in actual practice I have never seen it work as well as it looks. Castor oil has other properties which it seems only fair to mention next.

Wives Shouldn't Force In-Laws Onto Husbands

BY DOROTHY DIX
Dear Dorothy Dix—I have been married eleven years, have a husband I love, a pretty home, two beautiful babies and my happiness would be complete except that my husband doesn't get along with my mother. No real quarrel, they just can't agree. I always go to my mother's once a week to spend the day, and she always insists that I stay for supper. I tell my husband to come out and there is always a row about it. Don't you think that for my sake he ought to be willing to come? What shall I do?
RUTH.

Answer:
Of course, your husband should be willing to make this slight sacrifice of going to your mother's and making himself agreeable if it pleases you and makes you happy, but if he doesn't want to, and it is up to you not to make too much of a mountain out of a very small molehill.

A woman of intelligence soon finds out that she has to take her husband as he is and not as he should be. When she accepts him on this basis, and makes the best of him, her troubles are simplified, because then she stops battling herself against a stone wall, which only bruises her and does no good.

So, in your particular case, eliminate the very fruitful subject of argument and quarrel by frankly telling your mother that your husband is tired after his day's work and wants to come to his own home.

Quit asking him to go to your mother's for supper. Do your visiting in the daytime. Go twice a week if you want to, but don't stay for supper and don't expect hubby into going against his will.

If you will do this and leave him free to come and go as he likes, he will probably like to go now and then. One of the reasons why husbands have such a distaste for their wives' families is because their wives are always ramming them down their throats.

Dear Miss Dix—Can a girl acquire charm?
MADGE.

Answer:
In its sublimated form the charm that makes, say, a Ninon de L'Enclos, who, at 90, still had an irresistible way with her, is composed of a thousand subtle elements and is a gift of the gods. But in its lower brackets the charm that enables a woman to catch a good husband, and to be always the first person you think of when you are giving a dinner party is, roughly speaking, composed of three things—appearance, personality and adaptability.

All of these can be learned. Begin with appearance, which is the first impression we get of an individual and which attracts or repulses us. It is luck, of course, for a girl's fairy godmother to have endowed her with a willowy figure, a peaches-and-cream complexion and naturally wavy hair, but no woman is under the compulsion nowadays of staying as God made her if He made her ugly. She can get a synthetic complexion in any drug store that beats Nature's best efforts. She can change hair-colored hair to any hue she desires. By taking thought to her calories, she can put on or take off curves at will and acquire the figure that is the answer to every maiden's prayer.

She can be taught how to dress. More than half of every woman's looks are her clothes. When we

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST
By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Are your children being trained for unhappy adulthood? Are you making them wallflowers and poor marriage risks? Under 18 years of age a child's poor personality is the fault of his parents. After 18 it is his own laziness. Be sure you get a copy of my free Test For Mothers.

CASE J-189: Bobby H., aged 7, is a shy little fellow with blue eyes. "Bobby has such an inferiority complex," his society mother protested, despairingly.
"He is timid about trying anything new. He doesn't want to play with other children, but hangs back on the sidelines. He likes to watch them, but refuses to participate in their games."
"His governess tells me he is very bright and can learn rapidly, but ing a bicycle, swimming, standing on their heads.

"Take them to a restaurant. Let them order their own meal. Enable them to earn their own money. Let them spend it much as they will. Better that 7-year-old Bobby waste his 25 cents on a foolish purchase now, and profit from the lesson, than that he be shielded till the age of 21, and then foolishly waste his entire inheritance."
Build Confidence
Confidence correlates with success. The more things your child can perform successfully, the greater his self-confidence.
Bobby has been shielded. He has a governess, and wears silly clothes. His mother dresses him like a Little Lord Fauntleroy. Bobby realizes his conspicuous appearance, even if he thinks he is so cute.
He shies away from social contacts with other boys, for he is afraid of ridicule. He can play the piano, but not baseball. He feels like an alien when with normal children. It is his mother's fault.

He should be sent to public school, and equipped with the conventional habits of adjustment to a boy's modern world. Give him a dose of some boxing lessons, just for his own self-defense.

Socially Deformed?
Let him learn to play the games of average second graders. At present he is socially deformed. His mind has been trained in French and music, reading, etc.
But his social life has been abnormal. He feels this weak spot in his development.
Bobby can't very well remedy the condition, for he is too young. It is his mother's responsibility. But you, timid wallflower of adult years can change conditions. You are not entitled to blame your parents.

Until the age of 18, you may partially blame them, but every adult can make himself. Give him a dose of English, dance, play a musical instrument, carry on an interesting conversation, and become a vital, attractive personality. Don't abate or pass the buck to your parents, if you are above 18.
And all mothers should write me in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent for a free copy of my Test For Mothers. Be sure to send stamped, self-addressed envelope.

(Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.)

Beauty and You
by PATRICIA LINDSAY

There are so many theories on when to shampoo your hair, how often and what with, that it is not surprising many women and girls are confused.

Today I will limit my advice to those of you who are troubled with oily hair, dandruff or falling hair. The same treatment does for all three scalp conditions and if you have one ailment you are likely to have the other two.

Dandruff is scalp eczema. Some claim it is the excessive activity of the oil glands. Others that it is a drying scalp. But all agree that vigorous scalp massage, hair brushing and pulling is required to banish it. It seems that local circulation is lacking so you must bring the blood to the scalp through finger-tip caresses, and sound brushing with a deep, stiff bristled brush.

In shampooing your hair never use hot water. For a stubborn case of dandruff wash your hair once a week with tincture of green soap (which you buy in liquid form at a drugstore for a few pennies). Do not use this if you have dyed your hair—it might turn the color. Castile is safest for dyed tresses.

Apply the tincture of green soap to the scalp with a soft brush and rub it into the scalp. Rinse several times with warm water and the last rinsing should be cold water. Plenty of cold water is good for an oily scalp.

Falling hair is practically always associated with dandruff, although continued poor health, or blood which is anemic may be responsible. The general stimulating through scalp massage and daily brushing is of great value but persons, with falling hair, should most certainly have their blood count checked. Perhaps a change of diet, or a blood tonic is needed.

My leaflet "Reconditioning Tired Hair," may help you. Send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to Patricia Lindsay, care of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Teachers are Victims of Mass Production Scheme
BY ANGELO PATRI

For some years now we have been measuring the intelligence of children so that we might fit the teaching of their needs and abilities. We found what we had always found, in practice, that we had some very bright children, some very dull ones, and some impossibly defective ones. The great group could manage well enough to get along, most of them doing a bit better than that.

Inasmuch as children are individual in their tastes, abilities and temperaments they need to be taught as individuals. We agree, all of us, to that. Some school systems, even have courses of study to be applied to the individual child's needs. But as far as I can discover, in no school that serves the general public's children, is there provision made for the teacher to teach the individual child. She has been told she should, but she has been given conditions that make any such teaching impossible.

You cannot develop the latent gifts of forty to fifty individual children in a school day, in a formally equipped classroom. And that is about the state of individual instruction in the United States of America today. It is worse than that. The teacher has to teach classes, groups of children. Her work is usually judged by the number of pupils she is able to send ahead at the end of the term.

She is not going to be credited with the improvement in any individual's attitude, or power, or growth. She is measured, even in town where individual instruction is set as an ideal, in terms of a class average. What happens?

Gradually the work of the classroom slows down to the speed of the slowest group. The teacher cannot leave them behind. She must drag them along to keep up that average. She cannot spend more time on one child than on another when there are just so many minutes to a period and a supervisor checking on the daily program at every turn.

The work levels down to the slowest group of normal children and the defectives are relegated to the rear and left there. There is no other way for the teacher.

Gifted children should have opportunities for development of their gifts, even if that means a special school with special teachers.

fore she speaks and not be a bull in the conversational china shop; to lend her ears when people talk to her; to show appreciation of courtesies extended to her. And she can learn not to talk about herself and her symptoms. She can learn the gentle art of approach to people. And when she has acquired skill in these things she will have charm. And that's the most important thing a woman can have, because it lasts as long as life does.

First Lead Defeats Bid Of 6 Spades

"West, frightened by North's club overcall, did not lead the king of clubs (for which I later cursed him appropriately, as that lead would have forced me to make the contract). Instead, he led the ten of hearts. As soon as I saw the dummy I mused for about three minutes and arrived at the following conclusions: (1) I had one loser in clubs and, at worst, a possible spade loser. (2) East's double certainly was psychic or stupid, since the only outstanding honors were in clubs, and the queen of spades, which, if held by East, was front of my opening spade bid. Therefore, decided to ignore East's double. (3) If I took the spade finesse, I would have a 50 per cent chance of making the contract since, if either of my opponents won with the queen, they would immediately cash their club trick. (4) If I played for a drop of the spade queen I would have, say, a 40 per cent chance of dropping it and, even if that failed, I still would have a 40 per cent chance of finding the outstanding diamonds divided evenly—and even if not, then a 50 per cent chance that the opponent who was short would not have the spade queen. This would give me an opportunity to throw off the jack of clubs in dummy on my diamond ace. Thus, according to probabilities, I had an 80 per cent chance of making the contract, and even a 16 per cent chance of making seven-odd.

"Accordingly, that was the method I chose to play. Took the heart lead with the king in dummy, led the king of spades, then the ace on which East played low and I played the ace. I then went to the diamond suit, but as you can see, all my calculations were of no avail. East trumped the third diamond lead and West cashed his club trick. "My partner insists that I should have taken a spade finesse through East because of his double. What do you think?

"S. S. K., Philadelphia, Pa."

Undoubtedly, my correspondent had a tough nut to crack as declarer. The fact that West did not open a club and, therefore, gave declarer a chance for a rather what appeared to be a chance to discard dummy's club after drawing two rounds of trumps was in itself an unfortunate part. I fully agree with S. S. K.'s remark that, on the face of things, East's double was either "psychic or stupid" and that actual possession of the spade queen would make the double worse instead of better.

As noted in the above letter, declarer had a good chance to fulfill the contract by leading the ace and king of trumps. If the queen failed to appear, there still would be a sound play to run the diamond suit and discard dummy's singleton club on the fourth round. Assuming that the spade queen had not been picked up, this plan still would succeed if the holder of the queen had as many as three diamonds.

It always is easy to bowl out a partner for having refused to take a finesse that would have worked, but in this case I wholeheartedly agree with my correspondent's reasoning.

Good Taste Today
By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: I have received a wedding announcement with an at home card enclosed. The young people are strangers to me, but the mother of the groom was a girlhood friend. The young people are living some distance from where we moved years ago. As it is impossible for me to call on the bride and groom, which they undoubtedly knew when enclosing the at home card, was there any reason for sending it? I mean, is it customary to pay some attention other than going to see them when the circumstances are like these I've just explained?

Answer: No, it is not necessary that you take any notice of this card. It merely means that your old friend has put your name on the list of her friends who would, she hoped, be interested in knowing that her son has married and where he is now living.

Clothes at a Wedding Out-of-Doors
Dear Mrs. Post: Are formal clothes ever worn at a wedding taking place in the garden? I have for so long associated outdoor weddings with cottons and flannels that I don't know whether my feeling that striped trousers and satin or silk and tails are suitable is an arbitrary one or not. Will you explain this?

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOME
Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

Chocolate Delicacies
For a flavor that is guaranteed to spread its universal appeal from the youngest to the oldest in the household the old standby chocolate has no equal—not even a close competitor.

The question, what to serve for dessert is always an important one, so I am sure you will appreciate these delicious desserts.
The deluxe devil's food cake is another of my most popular recipes. It is especially tender, and is made doubly delicious with the marshmallow icing, covered with a layer of chocolate. Really you have no idea how delicious the tangy, bitter chocolate can be until you have tried this. You will also receive the wholehearted approval of your husband and family when you serve the chocolate cookies with fudge frosting.

THE CHARACTERS
Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.
Archie Lumsden, myself, Hugo's friend.
Rene Geiss, a cartoonist with a distorted mind.

Yesterday, Geiss tells the magistrate that I am the murderer. And will probably commit suicide or another murder shortly.

Chapter 23
The Club of Down-and-Outs
As Hugo's big car swung out along the coast road, I told him the events of the past few hours since I had moved to the Chateau la Vague. When I came to the interview with Jean-Francois and his transcript of Geiss's conversations with the judge, Hugo grew serious.

"Archie, I don't like it—not a bit. Whatever dangers the Chateau la Vague may hold for you, I'll swear they're nothing to what Geiss is preparing for you outside. Here's the way I read it. He'll have a shot at bumping you off, in such a way as will suggest suicide, and there will be a letter confessing to Eve Monet's murder waiting to be placed conveniently near your corpse. If that effort doesn't come off, he'll exterminate some innocent and inoffensive person and contrive to throw the blame on you."

"But he'd have to prove motive for that," I suggested mildly, "and the only person I have a motive for killing is myself. I can't somehow see him offering himself as the victim of the perfect crime."
"Don't joke!" he retorted irritably. "What's your next move?"

I have for so long associated outdoor weddings with cottons and flannels that I don't know whether my feeling that striped trousers and satin or silk and tails are suitable is an arbitrary one or not. Will you explain this?

Answer: The fashions have changed and are gradually growing more informal, but since cutaway coats and striped trousers have been seen for generations at garden parties and weddings on the lawns of more or less formal country places, I think the type of country place would therefore be important to the answer of this question. A garden that is at all somewhat formal in type would be entirely fitting and on the other hand, a little cottage garden would seem an inappropriate background for formal town clothes. Satin for the bride's dress is always suitable—unless too heavy.

Father as Best Man
Dear Mrs. Post: I recently went to a wedding, and to the surprise of every one the groom had chosen his father for best man. Wasn't this a strange thing for him to have done?

Answer: No, as a matter of fact, I wrote an answer to a similar question not long ago. I would say that the percentage of fathers who serve as best man was very small, but this detail is neither unheard of nor incredible. While answering this, it might be well to add that while it will not do at all to have the bride's mother serve as matron of honor, it is possible, when she is a widow and when the bride is having no other attendants, that she take her husband's place and walk with her daughter up the aisle. But this is very unusual, and it is necessary that she should not have her hat and dress very carefully so that it will act as an aid to, and not a distraction from, the dress of the bride.

My Neighbor Says—

Rhododendrons and azaleas can be planted safely at this season if they can be kept well mulched and well watered. The soil where they are to go must be well drained, and without clay. Limestone and lime are harmful. Lime should never be spread on the ground where plants of this kind are being grown. Rhododendrons must be watered both Summer and Autumn if the season is dry, and it is particularly important to saturate the ground just before it freezes, so that there will be an abundance of moisture around the roots.

Before painting enameled wood-work if you will wash it with an ammonia solution (1 tablespoon to a pint of water) and wipe off with clear water it will cover better and take only one coat of paint.

To give pickled beets a new and different flavor add a few pickled onions chopped fine.

Use adhesive tape to place your lamp cords and cords around baseboards and corners to keep them out of sight.

Old Gardener Says:

Gladioli are very easily managed at digging time. It is merely necessary to lift and dry them when the leaves have begun to turn yellow and store them in bags or boxes in a frost-proof place until spring. Before they are put away, the old corms, which will be found beneath the new ones, should be taken off, for they are useless. The tiny corms, many of which are generally to be seen, will grow into flowering roots if they are saved and planted in spring, but they will not bloom the first year. If thrips have caused trouble this season, it will be wise to store the bulbs where the temperature will be almost at the freezing point when the weather is very cold. Thrips cannot survive low temperatures.

Lawrence City's Greatest Asset, Mayor Maintains

Says College Helps to "Elevate Intellectual Plane in Appleton"

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., in an interview today, said Lawrence college is Appleton's biggest asset and should be regarded as such by the citizens of Appleton.

The mayor was enthusiastic about the beginning of a new term at the college and said he hoped for continued goodwill and better relations between the city and the college. Lawrence college provides a place where graduates of Appleton high school can get a higher education while staying at home. The school helps to elevate the intellectual plane in Appleton, the mayor said.

"Students attending Lawrence from other cities in the state as well as those from other states are an asset in themselves. They live here for nine months of the year, buy their clothes and other necessities from Appleton merchants," Mayor Goodland continued.

Lands Improvement Work
The mayor lauded college officials for their efforts to improve and add new facilities. The new tennis courts and women's campus on the bank of the Fox river are a real addition to the school, the mayor said. "The whole series sponsored by the college each year is a good thing for the community," the mayor said. "It gives music lovers a chance to hear the better musicians and singers and gives parents a chance to bring their children to hear the best of the world of music to offer."

Amateur plays produced by the Little Theater group at the college came in for their share of praise while the mayor was on the subject. He said he saw them regularly and enjoyed them and said the people of Appleton should be proud to see their sons and daughters take part in them.

Put Appleton On Map

"Lawrence college athletics have put Appleton on the map. The teams play all over the state and whether they win or lose always make Appleton people proud they can say Appleton is the home of Lawrence college," he said.

Mayor Goodland welcomed freshmen to Appleton at convocation Thursday night, told them to make themselves at home and said he was glad to have them here.

The Lawrence college campus threw off its summer lethargy this week when scores of first-year students arrived to register and take part in freshman week activities. Among those who were getting their first taste of college life were these two Racine girls, Miss Jeannette Vincent, left, and Miss Bette Nehoda, right, who were grateful for a marker to show them the way to the administration building. Lawrence College, Paper Institute Have Combined Budget of Over $750,000

Lawrence college has been characterized by Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, president, as Appleton's oldest and most stable industry while the college and Institute of Paper Chemistry are regarded as important economically to this community as they are intellectually and economically.

The combined budgets of the two institutions call for expenditures in Appleton of $680,000 during 1938. Included in the $680,000 is $480,000 by the college and of this figure, $255,000 represents salaries and $225,000 for other than personnel services. The institute will spend $200,000 in the city.

The two institutions, employing 240 persons, have a current budget of more than three-quarters of a million dollars and it is steadily increasing.

Students Spend $70,000
The paper chemistry institute started in 1930 with a staff of five, three students, a $40,000 annual budget and was quartered in two rooms of Alexander gymnasium. Today the institute employs a staff of 75, had 44 students last semester and a $300,000 budget. Buildings are valued at $320,000 and equipment is worth $500,000.

"Very conservative figures" show that Lawrence fraternity houses produce an annual revenue to the city of $35,000 and the students, who buy food and clothing and spend money for entertainment, annually leave $70,000 in the city. They are included in the total estimate of $680,000.

Adding the expenditures of the two institutions over a 9-year period from 1930 through 1938, the college spent $4,025,000, the institute $1,350,000, fraternities $300,000 and students $650,000, a grand total of $6,325,000.

Nearly all contracts for college and institute construction have been awarded to local Fox river valley contractors and during the depression the college budget did not drop below $400,000.

Receive Gifts
Aid to students is made possible through generosity of friends of the college who have given liberally to erect buildings and to establish endowments. Since the college was organized 90 years ago, more than three and a half million dollars has been given to build plants and for endowments. Gifts have been received from more than 1,200 individuals during the last 12 years.

The college has operated with annual deficits of $30,000 to $40,000 the last six or seven years which have been paid through gifts by members of the board of trustees. Last May, a total of $63,000 had been received this year in gifts.

Analyzing each dollar expended at the college, exclusive of dormitory and scholarship funds, 13 cents is spent for administration and general expenses, 7 cents for the admissions office, 61 cents for instruction, 13 cents for plant operation and maintenance, 2 cents for the infirmary, 2 cents for student aid and 2 cents for miscellaneous items.

THE CLOUDED MOON

flabby chin, but it was a face with the remains of extraordinary beauty. The man was a wreck of something splendid, and so seemed infinitely more horrible in his squalor. It was only for a second that I saw him; then, with a muttered word, he pushed past the other, and the door closed behind him.

"The Club des Sans Clubs at home!" I whispered.

Hugo grunted: "And the last arrival, I take it, was the gentleman who so kindly planted the gun on you this morning. Come on, let's have a look-see."

We circled round the barn, only to find it an ancient but solid structure, with no window of any shape. When I knelt by the door, all that came to my ear was a far-away murmur of voices.

It was unthinkable to have come so far and learned so little, but here Providence was suddenly kind, for the building adjacent to the barn proved to be an empty stable, and here we established ourselves and settled down to wait. An hour had passed when suddenly Hugo gripped me by the arm. "The party's breaking up," he whispered. "Shift yourself!"

We crept to the entrance. As I watched, the figure of the housekeeper appeared in the lighted square of the doorway and swiftly crossed to the big, black car, followed by two men, one of whom I had no difficulty in identifying as the chauffeur.

Villainous Faces
The black car purred gently round the angle of the house and disappeared, even as a more familiar shape, short, paunchy, consequential, emerged. In spite of the heat of the night, Baron Stahl was wrapped in a dark overcoat, with the collar turned up round his ears and a soft felt hat pulled low over his eyes, but it would have taken more than that to disguise him. He paused in the doorway to his elbow, a thin, shabby youth at his elbow, whose mop of frizzled fair hair caught the glow of the lantern like a halo; then both of them made off, Stahl to take possession of the second car, and the lad to vanish on foot into the shadows.

There was a moment's delay and then suddenly, through the lighted doorway, filed the queerest procession I had ever seen. Five slouching, down-at-heel men shambled out, followed closely by couple of painted drabs. If I searched the vilest slums of Paris I could not have made a better collection of villainous faces. The last to come out was the man who had whistled "Noah More."

He halted for a moment, whispering something to the doorkeeper, and laughed as he turned away, shambling off into the night; and the laugh turned my blood cold, for it was mad and bad, both crazy and cruel.

The doorkeeper locked the door from the outside, pocketed the key, and carefully dimmed his lantern before strolling over to the remaining car. He drove carefully around the house and for a moment we listened to the long-drawn roar of his engine, slowly fading into the drowsy silence of the countryside. Another ten minutes we waited; then we, too, made our cautious way back to the road.

We took our way back to Cannes, and it wasn't until we were humming along the home stretch that Hugo spoke.

"The Club des Sans Clubs," he said slowly. "The club of men without a club, without a home or country or a conscience or a moral code; the club of the down-and-out. Men with a grudge against civilization. Men who would stop at no villainy to get a fleeting sense of power or a still more fleeting revenge against the order that has discarded them. Archie, it's a fearful thought, the power that such an organization would be in the hands of unscrupulous men!"

"At least," I said, "we can spot quite a few of its members again when we see them."

He shook his head. "Of the local

Julius Krause Given Permit to Build Home

Cost of house is estimated at $5,400. It will be of frame construction and will be 24 feet wide and 28 feet long with a garage, 12 by 28 feet, attached.

ones, yes; but I've a feeling that the club itself has a much wider scope. I wouldn't wonder if its members are scattered broadcast over Europe — if some of them were at the bottom of each of the killings Dunning spoke of. Those fellows tonight were called together for a special purpose, for whatever drama is to be staged on Sunday week; and as you say, it's as well we've got a sight of them."

He broke off suddenly and jammed on his brakes, for round the bend of the slope, a big black limousine swept toward us, holding the crown of the road with a fine disregard for approaching traffic.

A moment only I saw it as it whizzed past. "The housekeeper," said I, "has been returned to cold storage. I wonder who the fellow was with her?"

"Time will show," said Hugo philosophically, and pulled up at the head of the lane that led to the chateau. "Good night, old son. I'll be waiting here at midday tomorrow and meantime don't let yourself be persuaded into committing suicide no matter how great the inducement."

Foreign Gold Is Pouring Into U. S.

European Crisis Causes 'Largest Flight to Dollar in History'

Washington—Secretary Morgenthau disclosed yesterday the European crisis had caused the "largest flight to the dollar in history."

The treasury head declined to estimate the amount of foreign funds sent here for safe-keeping but figures on recent treasury gold acquisitions indicated several hundred million dollars of foreign cash had arrived in the last few weeks.

"This movement proves," Morgenthau declared, "that the United States is the financial center of the world and can resist the kind of nervousness that people, with money fear."

"There is no reason for alarm over this movement. If people want to send money here for refuge, we are glad to accommodate them."

The secretary said he was in constant touch by trans-Atlantic telephone and cable with the financial authorities of England, France, Belgium, Switzerland and the Netherlands for the purpose of cooperating with them as signatories of the 1936 tri-partite monetary agreement in stabilizing international exchange.

No People More Loyal to U.S. Than Those of German Descent, Germanias Told

Menasha — "Best assured, there is no more loyal class of people in the entire United States than the descendants of worthy German ancestors," Albert H. Schubert of La Crosse, a former Menasha resident, told 500 persons, members of the Germania Benevolent society, their wives and friends, at the banquet celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the society at Germania hall Thursday night.

Opening his address in the German language, the speaker chided the members of the society because he had not heard a German word or song during the entire evening. He declared that although the young people apparently did not take to the German language, they did show the proper spirit and good work as shown by the celebration. He urged the society to give its work "the best you have in time it will come back to you."

He pointed out that the constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech, of assembly, trial by jury and the prohibition of slavery had first attracted the German immigrants to the northwest territory, and particularly Wisconsin, in the 1840's. Those early Germans were the ones, fired with idealism, who established the Concordia and Turnverein societies, forerunners of the Germania Benevolent society.

"Those whose ancestors came here years ago have no need to apologize for their German ancestry. They don't have to uphold the Germany of today. In fact, there is much more there today which I don't approve and which is not German. The prejudice of the World War caused many weak societies to change their German names but the citizens of German descent are among the bulwarks of American citizens."

Fought in Civil War

The former Menashan pointed out that the early Germans were opposed to slavery and that 35 per cent of the soldiers in the Union army during the Civil War were of German origin while no more than 25 per cent of the population was German. He also declared that their Germans in America did their share in every crisis which the country faced.

"They are good American citizens. They have no need to be ashamed of their ancestors," he stated. He declared that the Vaterland to those people was the United States, not the old country.

Societies similar to the Germania Benevolent society were pointed out as evidence of brotherly love, cooperation and good will which make the community a better one in which to live.

Recalls Early Events

The La Crosse attorney reminded the Menasha of his boyhood. He recalled the St. Patrick's day parades, the firemen's review day in which the various volunteer departments contested for supremacy and then gathered to celebrate their victories and the Fourth of July fetes when the streets would be lined with trees placed in the board sidewalks by the farmers.

"But when you go down the streets, many of the old men are missing. The great pioneers are gone but you have a new city. Just as successful. There are no more trees on the old men, but the new generation carries on to complete their work."

A holiday spirit filled the hall as the officers and members of the society rejoiced in the celebration of the fiftieth year of the formation of the Germania Benevolent society, a union of the Concordia society formed in 1856 and the Menasha Turnverein formed in 1862. Widows of the society members were special guests at the event.

Officers and trustees joined in the fun, joking the toastmaster, M. F. Crowley, just as much as he joked them. Crowley declared that he had never seen a business meeting conducted as the society held its election. He declared that one member said, "I move that the rules be suspended and that the secretary be instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for the old officers." All of the officers were re-elected at the meeting Monday night.

It's All in Fun

William G. Tuchscherer, financial secretary and a bachelor, pointed out to Crowley that he had no one to boss him after he had finished his day's work. John Suess, treasurer, declared that the officers of the society had developed their own political machine to insure reelection and that Crowley merely was jealous.

John Pack, recording secretary, made the hall resound with laughter when he compared the dress of women and men of 50 years ago with that of today while William Reimer, vice president, explained that he could make no speech because Crowley had taken all of the books from the library to prepare his remarks.

Joseph Stommel, one of the trustees, pointed to the harmony among the officers and the cooperation of the committees and the auxiliary as the reason for the success of the organization. F. G. Rippl, another trustee, declared he would do like the boy who couldn't dance, sit down and listen to the music.

C. J. Oberweiser, the third trustee, let the printed report of activities

Distribution of Book Borrowers Shown on Map at Menasha Library

Menasha — A survey of borrowers recently completed at Elisha D. Smith library has resulted in a map of Menasha which shows the distribution and location of library patrons throughout the city. A dot at the proper location on the map shows each household in which one or more people use the public library. The map is on display in the reading room at the library.

Results, based on the official city directory, show several of the long residential blocks in the city in which every home is represented. Among these are the north side of the 700 block on Second street; the north side of the 400 block and the south side of the 300 block on Broad streets and the east side of Appleton street between Seventh and Eighth streets and the east side of Appleton street between Sixth and Seventh streets and the east side of Pine street between Ahnaip street and Nicolet boulevard.

About 20 shorter blocks in various parts of the city boast 100 per cent representation. The smallest coverage is in the area north of the Soo line tracks, the survey shows. Borrowers were densely distributed on the island and in the area of Broad, First, Second and Third streets, which also represents the center of population in Menasha.

Some Neenah Patrons

The survey further showed that about 31 per cent of the borrowers are from the surrounding rural district. Approximately 14 per cent are out of town borrowers, chiefly from Neenah, who use courtesy cards available through an agreement among all public libraries in the Fox valley district.

As a means of keeping an accurate record of the number and location of active library users for purposes of studying and improving the service to the city, the library this month is adopting a system of continuous registration whereby borrowers will automatically re-register every four years. Failure to register will mean that the patron will not be counted as an active borrower until such time as he again makes use of the library.

In the period between June 1, 1934, approximately 5,300 people have taken out borrower's cards at the library. That figure represents about 56 per cent of the total population.

As guest speaker, Miss Marie Klein, Outagamie county nurse, talked on conservation of health, pointing out that fatigue and poor health habits contributed to common diseases. For the maximum enjoyment of life, one should have the capacity for play, work, love and worship, Miss Klein stated in quoting from Dr. Richard Cabot's "What Men Live By."

Miss Edna Gruetzmacher reported on personnel questionnaires sent to members of the club, urging all members to return the completed questionnaires by Oct. 2.

Searle Urges Moving Of Radio Transmitter

Menasha — Removal of the WAKE radio transmitter to a location in a rural area outside of Oshkosh was urged recently by Marshall Searle, chief operator for the station, who said that broadcasting efficiency will be increased from 25 to 95 per cent under the proposed new arrangement.

He also declared that soon the county police radio station may be called on to serve nine counties instead of four as at present. The broadcasting towers now are located at the old courthouse in Oshkosh. Land area is available at the county farm at Winnebago. The Winnebago county board has endorsed the project but financial endorsement of the other three counties in the hookup is needed to approve the tower relocation. Removal of the towers would improve the broadcasting scope of the station.

It Is Said--

That the toastmaster at the gold jubilee banquet of the Germania Benevolent society at Menasha last night was an Irishman, M. F. Crowley. The speaker at the evening, Albert H. Schubert of La Crosse, a former Menasha resident, explained that perhaps having an Irishman as toastmaster might be a form of revenge. He declared that years ago the Irish in Menasha observed St. Patrick's day with festivities and a parade but always at the head of the parade was a German band, led by Val Landgraf, Robert Hittle and Mr. Schubert.

Hunting Licenses to be Available At New County Courthouse Saturday

Menasha — Hunting licenses for the 1938 season will be available at the office of the county clerk in the new courthouse, building at Oshkosh Saturday morning, according to A. E. Hedke, county clerk. Substitutions where licenses may be obtained will be opened early next week in Menasha, Neenah, Winnebago and Omro.

A supply of license blanks has been received at the clerk's office but distribution was delayed pending arrival of a supply of the 1938 hunting law booklets. The license fee is $1 as in former years and applicants must apply in person. Last year over 6,000 hunting licenses were distributed in Winnebago county.

The only new feature of the 1938 license is an attached postcard which provides a complete list of game and on which hunters will tabulate the game killed for the 1938 game census. The postcard must not be detached from the license until the close of the season when it is to be filled out and returned to the conservation commission. Failure to return the card will prevent a hunter from securing a license in 1939.

Duck Season Oct. 1

The first of the hunting seasons will start on Oct. 1, when the season opens on mall ducks, coots, wild geese, quail, snipe, rails, jack snipe and gallinule. The season of those birds closes Nov. 14. The deer season will be from Nov. 19 to Nov. 25 in 30 counties.

Other hunting seasons will open at 1 p. m. on Oct. 15. They include ringneck, blackneck, Mongolian and mutant cock pheasants; gray and fox squirrels and prairie chickens and partridge in certain counties. The season on cottontail, snowshoe and jackrabbits will open Oct. 29 and run to Jan. 1. The season on all upland game birds will close Oct. 29 while the squirrel season will close Dec. 1. Daily bag limits and possession limits have been set down by the conservation commission for all types of game.

Landskron to be Acting Captain

Senior Tackle to Lead Bluejays Against Oshkosh Tonight

Neenah — Henry Landskron, senior tackle, was named acting captain of the Neenah High school football team for the first game of the season at 8 o'clock tonight against Oshkosh High school by Coach N. A. Calder. The football team of 1938 voted at the annual "M" club banquet a year ago to have the coach appoint an acting captain for each game and to have the team select an honorary captain at the end of the year.

The game against Oshkosh will start at 8 o'clock tonight under the lights at Butte des Morts field. Thursday and today workers have been busy under the direction of Louis Resch, custodian of the field, cutting the grass and yard markers as well as painting the sideline signs. The field is soggy from the heavy rains and probably will be slow. Passing is apt to be difficult.

The Bluejays concluded their practice for the first game with a dummy scrimmage Thursday afternoon and a lengthy skull session last night. Coach Calder intends to use as many players as possible in the game tonight, which is a non-conference tilt, in order to get a definite line on his material for the conference opener at Shawano a week from Saturday.

Spanish Pianist to Open Community Artist Series; Five Concerts Scheduled

FIVE CONCERTS, featuring four outstanding soloists and two ensemble organizations, have been scheduled for this year's Community Artist Series, according to Dean Carl J. Waterman of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music.

The opening concert will be given by Amparo Iturbi, the Spanish pianist, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 26. Miss Iturbi is the sister of the famous Jose Iturbi, conductor-pianist, who appeared here several years ago and won favor with his audience. Although she bears his name, Amparo Iturbi is an artist in her own right and has established herself both in radio and concert performances during the short time she has been in America. Appearances with the New York Philharmonic orchestra and the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra have added to the warm welcome America has extended her and are a sincere tribute to her ability as a pianist.

Helen Jepson, striking young American soprano of screen, radio, opera and concert stage, will sing here on November 29. Miss Jepson's rise to prominence during the last few years has made her name favorably known throughout the entire nation. Although she is a member of the Metropolitan Opera cast, she has also won the plaudits of Chicago critics for triumphs scored there last season with the Chicago City Opera company.

Hubert To Appear
The third number of the series will be presented by Marcel Hubert, the French cellist who at the age of 11 made his first concert tour of France and at 13 won the coveted first prize at the Paris Conservatoire. Success came immediately to the youth. He was summoned to play for the president of the French republic, Pomare, and for the president of Brazil. During the war he gave 18 concerts for the soldiers and was soloist at the great Fete at the Sorbonne for Marshall Foch.

Marcel Hubert's introduction to the trans-Atlantic countries was on a tour of the principal Canadian cities. Then came his debut in the United States, which took place at Town Hall, New York. This was the forerunner of his impressive American career. Since his initial appearance, Marcel Hubert has played in almost every state in the union, in Canada and Havana. His coast-to-coast tours have included recitals and appearances with orchestras in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Toronto, Montreal and other key cities of the United States and Canada.

Lawrence Choir
The annual appearance of the Lawrence A Cappella Choir, directed by Dean Carl J. Waterman, will be given on February 16.

The group will be heard in unaccompanied and accompanied songs ranging from the sublime ecclesiastical motets of early church composers to the highly colorful arrangements of folk songs and operatic excerpts which have won them the warmest praise from critics in Chicago and Milwaukee, as well as many other Wisconsin cities where they have appeared in concert.

Edward Dudley, young American tenor, who has been acclaimed as a "second Melchior", will be the featured soloist on the program given by the Lawrence Symphony orchestra under the direction of Dr. Percy Fullinwider. Praised and acclaimed by critics and audiences alike, Edward Dudley is recognized as one of the outstanding stellar attractions of today's musical world. With equal sureness, clarity and color his rich, robust tenor flows through the media of opera, concert and oratorio. This concert has been arranged for Wednesday, March 8.

Ask Consideration of Problem Involving Refugee Jewish Doctors

Chicago—The Journal of the American Medical association asked in an editorial today for a "careful, sympathetic consideration" of the problem concerning refugee Jewish physicians.

The editorial pointed out these increases of immigrant physicians: For 1928—Austria 3, Germany 22, and Italy 11.

For eight months, 1938—Austria 62, Germany 302, and Italy 26. "While the total number of physicians coming to this country from abroad may not be great the problem is increasing," the editorial added. "No doubt the difficulty may well continue until all living Jewish physicians from Germany, Austria and Italy have been transplanted."

State Boards Concerned
"This problem is one which is already concerning the various state medical boards, since the licensure of doctors to practice is still within the power of the individual states. The question of restriction of immigration is one which will no doubt come before the congress of the United States. The situation is fraught with difficulties arising from economic stress, chauvinistic prejudices, fears that have been stimulated by propaganda, and other motivations.

"Only by careful sympathetic consideration will a reasonable solution be possible."

Sun Makes Strong Bid But Bows to Banks of Clouds

Danger of Floods Minimized in Area Surrounding Appleton

The sun started out strong in Appleton and vicinity this morning and had its own little about noon when clouds gathered to blot it out. Considerable cloudiness is predicted tonight and Saturday with slightly warmer temperatures. There was a possibility of light showers in the extreme northeast section of Wisconsin tonight.

High water continues to be the topic of the day but danger of floods has been minimized in the surrounding area. Water in the Fox river branches flowing through Neenah and Menasha revealed a new high and 14 gates at the Neenah dam and six gates at the Menasha dam, two of which had never been opened, were open and sluice gates were taxed to capacity.

Only surplus water from land and none from the Wisconsin river was pouring into the Fox, it was reported, and officials scoffed at the excitement caused yesterday when the Portage levee broke and twin city mill owners were advised to clear first floor levels of merchandise.

Cattle Marooned

The Wolf River was reported a foot below the spring flood level and although there was a considerable amount of land under water, no serious damage was reported. Several side roads in the vicinity of New London are inundated and instances of cattle being marooned have been reported.

Alan H. Tripp, Oshkosh president of the Association for the Relief of High Water, declared over 70,000 acres of farm lands were under water in the Wolf River valley. He said water reached 7 feet on the United States gauge at Gill's Landing Wednesday and was still rising.

"It takes eight days for water to reach the force of the high water will not be felt at Fond du Lac or Oshkosh until the first of next week," Tripp said. "This flood will cost the farmers of the Upper Wolf district at least $50,000 in damaged crops," he claimed.

Mercury Climbs to 68

Maximum and minimum temperatures during the 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 44 degrees at 6 o'clock this morning and 62 degrees at 9 o'clock, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company. The mercury had risen to 68 degrees at noon today, according to the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building.

Highest and lowest temperatures in the nation yesterday were at Phoenix with 102 degrees and Park Falls with 36 degrees, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

FLOOD WATERS LAP SECTIONS OF RAILROAD TRESTLE

Just to prove that the heavy rains in recent weeks have really boosted the level of the Fox river to flood proportions, here is a picture taken from the Wisconsin Michigan Power company dam yesterday. The exceptionally strong current is shown crashing against the abutments at the power company and throwing water level high into the air. In the upper right, just over the water level is shown the railroad trestle with water lapping at its lower sections. Employees at the power plant said the water is higher than during the spring high water period. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Waupaca County Will Ballot on 86 Candidates

Four Parties Represented In Primary Election Sept. 20

Manawa—Waupaca county voters will cast ballots for their preference among 86 state and county candidates Sept. 20 at which time party nominees will be selected for the November election. Of this total, 37 are Republicans, 23 are Democrats, 23 are Progressives, and the remaining trio come under the Union ticket.

Opposition occurs for every state office on the Republican ticket from United States senator and governor on down. All but state treasurer and secretary of state have opposition on the Progressive ticket while there are contests in the Democratic party for every office with the exception of United States senator.

Republicans have the only race for congress where Reid F. Murray and Herman H. Behm, both of Waupaca, will vie for the support of the voters. Gerald J. Bollenau, Wausau, incumbent, is the Progressive nominee, while James T. Cavanaugh, Antigo, carries the Democratic banner.

Edging in Race
Lewis W. Eastling, Manawa, will oppose Fred Fisher, Waupaca, for the Republican nomination for state senator. Andrew A. Washburn, Clintonville, and Herley M. Jaelin, Plover, are the Progressive aspirants, while Aloysius J. Aschenbrenner of Stevens Point is on the Democratic ticket.

Three Republican candidates desire to be the nominee for assemblyman from the Waupaca county district. They are Julius Spearbraker, Clintonville; Edwin E. Weinman, Iola; Herman W. Werth, town of Union. The Progressive candidate is Alvin A. Handrich, Manawa, incumbent, while Democrats will vote for Otto R. Schwantes, Clintonville.

Sheriff finds opposition on all three tickets. Duncan R. Campbell, incumbent, and James O. Hanson, former sheriff, are the Republicans; Judeon A. Boule, Clintonville, and Raymond V. Wright, Iola, are Democrats; Earl Cartwright, Waupaca, and Charles Greitzinger, Clintonville, the Progressives.

There is no opposition for the remaining county offices. For county clerk, Leland J. Steiger, incumbent, is the Republican standard bearer, with Mrs. Esther McCarthy, Weyauwega, Democrat, and Charles H. Cather, Clintonville, Progressive. For county treasurer, the Republican is Leonard J. Stiller, incumbent, and the Progressive is Hans Jensen, New London.

Roman Seeks Re-election
Dr. John C. Johnson, Ogdensburg, incumbent, is the Republican candidate for coroner Donald Morgan, Sheridan, is the Democrat, and Dr. Sam Salan, Waupaca, the Progressive. Paul Oxrom, incumbent, Republican, and Arthur L. Warneke, New London, Progressive, are candidates for clerk of the circuit court.

District Attorney Paul E. Roman is again a candidate on the Republican ticket, while Tom Browne, Waupaca, is the Progressive. Mrs. Alice Larkee, Republican, is the register of deeds. Nelson R. Deming, New London, is the Democratic aspirant for that office, while William E. Lipke, New London, is the Progressive candidate. Walter H. Hoyard, Republican, county surveyor, again seeks that office. Leon P. Pelisheck, Clintonville, is the Democrat candidate. There is no Progressive running for this office.

Hollywood—Settin' Around (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer): Walking past the rehearsal stage on this lot today I heard the rhythmic clatter of tap shoes and stopped to investigate. It was Joan Crawford, practicing her dance routines for "The Shining Hour"—which, in my opinion, will prove to be her shining opportunity. She thinks so, too—and that is a bit ironic in view of the fact that she has consistently fought dancing roles ever since her first screen success.

"Our Dancing Daughters," climaxed a series of hot-cha, jitterbug parts, made her a top-flight, box-office star—and then she turned tragic. She gave technically good performances, but Joan and Jane Public were not satisfied. There were plenty of tragediennes—they wanted Joan Crawford to dance. Her box-office rating began to slip—and it kept slipping until, four or five years ago, she gave in and made a picture called "Dancing Lady." Presto—up soared her rating again. And now, for the third time she is trying to dance her way back to the heights. After watching her rehearsal today, I think she will succeed.

She is an amazing person—if you can call such a bundle of animated ambition a person. Whatever she wants, she works for with an energy that amounts to fury. She was dancing that way today, probably hating both the routine and the dancing role, but determined to make it the best of her career. How can anything or anyone stop a girl like that?

Watched Fay Bainter play a difficult emotional scene for "The Shining Hour"—a scene in which she had to suggest tremendous nerve tension. She played it perfectly the first take and the director beamed. "Magnificent—a great performance!" he said. Later, chatting with me, he acclaimed Fay as one of the greatest actresses and most magnetic personalities that ever stepped in front of a camera. And it was the last part of his statement that made me smile. About two years ago, Miss Bainter made tests for M-G-M. They liked her acting but declined to sign her because "she had no screen personality." Don't hold it against Metro—every studio's history is high lighted by just such ironic errors.

Judy Garland and Buddy Ebsen, playing Dorothy and the Tin Woodman in "The Wizard of Oz," were practicing an eccentric dance routine that called for an exchange of back slaps. The stage was hot, the routine strenuous and Buddy, completely encased in a tin suit, was suffering. During one of their rest periods he was enviously appraised Judy's thin gingham frock. "This is okay for you," he groused, "but it's killing me." With a forced grin Judy bared her back. "You big sofie," she retorted, "you ought to try getting your back slapped—when you've got a sun-burn like mine!"

Everyone who has seen the rushes, predicts that "The Great Waltz" will reveal a new star in Meliza Korpus, the Viennese songster. At any rate she is a Hollywood miracle. Two years ago, when she came here she weighed nearly 200 pounds, spoke no English and dressed with debatable taste. Today, meeting her on the set, I hardly recognized her. She is sixty pounds lighter, speaks English with the faintest of accents, is beautifully gowned, and, by some

Stories of Switzerland
V—THE PRISONER OF CHILLON
In the French section of Switzerland is the city of Geneva, and beside it is a large and beautiful lake. Sometimes the lake is called "Le-man," sometimes "Lake Geneva."
Lake Geneva is eight miles wide and 45 miles long. The surface is 1,220 feet above sea level, but the water is extremely deep. At one point the depth is 1,095 feet deep—more than a fifth of a mile. The part of the bottom is only 125 feet above sea level!
A boat trip across Lake Geneva gave me some of the most beautiful views I have seen in my travels. Mountains rise from the shore almost all around the lake.
At the end of the boat trip, I reached the "Castle of Chillon." One of its towers has stood there about 900 years, and the other parts of the castle are hundreds of years old.
Following a guide, I went down into a dungeon, and saw the place where the famous "Prisoner of Chillon" was once kept. Speaking of the prisoner, my guide said, "He wasn't such a good man as you might think from reading the poem about him."
The poem of which he spoke was written by Lord Byron, noted English poet. Byron told about a prisoner named Francis Bonivard, who was supposed to have suffered prison for the sake of his religion. In real fact, there seems to have been no reason of religion which caused him to be made a captive. Byron, himself, later said he had not known the full truth when he wrote the poem.
At the age of 26, Bonivard seems to have taken part in a plot against the Duke of Savoy. The duke sent men to arrest him and the other plotters. Bonivard put on the disguise of a monk and fled from Geneva, but he was captured and for two years was a prisoner at the Castle of Grolée.
After getting out of prison, Bonivard started a rebellion against the Duke of Savoy. With a small band of followers, he carried on a kind of warfare—hiding and attacking from ambush. Some of the duke's soldiers were shot down, but the rebellion did not make much headway.
At the age of 37, Bonivard was captured again by the duke's men, and this time he was taken to the Castle of Chillon. For two years he was held there as an ordinary prisoner. Then, for a reason not clearly known, he was cast into the dungeon. He stayed in the dungeon for four years, but was freed when the castle was captured by the enemies of the Duke of Savoy.
Bonivard's life out of prison brought him almost as many troubles as he had suffered inside. He lived, however, to the age of 77, and wrote two books.

Lawrence College Gridders Open Season Against Northwestern Week From Tomorrow With Well-Polished but Small Aggregation

CO-CAPTAIN ALBERT NOVAKOWSKI

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
ONE week from tomorrow Lawrence college football team will open the 1938 season against Northwestern college of Waukegan and will be represented by one of the smallest squads from a numerical standpoint but the most highly polished from a tactical standpoint.

Last Monday morning the Vikes reported to Coach Bernie Heseltine for the first time. A second workout followed in the afternoon and that has been the order of events every day since, weather permitting. As a result the Vikes are taking on a polish, a precision in their offense that hasn't been seen in several years. And add to that there is a spirit of confidence and a lust for victory that probably will not be denied.

Heseltine is starting his first season here coming from Milwaukee East Division where he had a prep record which is a mark for other coaches to shoot at. He held spring drills here in May with a husky turnout which has since revealed itself as almost every lad who ever wore a suit here. This fall the turnout isn't as large for various reasons but it is 14-karat in practically every instance.

Eleven Good Men
Indications are the first 11 men to take the field for the Vikes will be a really capable group. Topping the list because of last year's accomplishments is Albie Novakowski who promises to be the best ball carrier in the state college circuit. He is fast, snake-hipped and snifty, and can run, pass and take care of his defensive assignments.

Another man who will vie with Novakowski for running honors is Ken Buesing, a junior member of the squad who probably will have his biggest season this fall. There isn't anything that he can't do and his defensive work is a treat.

And if Novakowski is the best running back in the state then Joe Maertzwiler is the best blocking back, one of the greatest defensive players for his size and the spark-plug that keeps the Vikings moving. He and Novakowski are co-captains of the team. Maertzwiler is working for his old high school coach when he works for Heseltine.

The Viking fullback promises to be Art Kaemmer, playing his first year of varsity ball. He has ideal build, his proportions being similar to those of Clark Hinkle, the great Packer fullback. Kaemmer runs hard but will be getting his first test this season.

Pair of Jacks at Ends
A pair of Jacks are the Viking ends, Crawford, a veteran of two seasons and Nystrom, of one. Both are tall, can catch passes but Crawford holds the edge in experience, something that means a lot to a wing man. Nystrom developed late last year and if he has any weaknesses they'll be corrected by competition.

Mention of the Viking tackles brings smiles from all followers of the team for one of them, Vince Jones, who goes 284 pounds in a bath towel and who can move as fast as some of the backs, is destined to be a standout performer.

Lewis Wins Bout Over Heavyweight

Takes 10-Round Battle From Adamick; Risked Chance at Galento

Philadelphia—(AP)—Light heavyweight champion John Henry Lewis breathed easier today as he had gambled and won.

The Phoenix, Ariz., Negro punched out a split 10-round decision over Jimmy Adamick, youthful Midland, Mich., heavyweight, in a furious battle at convention hall last night. As a result, he still is in line for a fight with Tony Galento, of Orange, N. J., rated the No. 1 challenger for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown.

Lewis risked losing this possible meeting with Galento and its attendant big gate by agreeing to fight Adamick.

As it was, only his experience saved Lewis from a knockout in the ninth and tenth rounds.

Adamick's strong finish, however, failed to erase Lewis' early big lead on points.

Galento, who saw the fight, said: "I'll knock both of 'em out, break 'em in half."

CO-CAPTAIN JOSEPH MAERTZWILER

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

LITTLE NINE CONFERENCE coaches and principals gathered at the Conway hotel last evening and we had the privilege of sitting down to dinner with them and listening to them discuss their problems, most of them sports.

They approved of a list of basketball officials which included Albert Gaffney, Mike Gochbauer, Jack Notebaart, Leonard Peterson, Ray Schwanke and G. W. Unser. They also selected Norman La Marr as first reserve official. The lacrosse basketball was adopted as official and it was decided to hold a rules interpretation meeting at Seymour, Oct. 25, at 7:30 at which all coaches, principals and officials would be present.

Touch and six-man football came in for consideration and several of the schools probably will play games if and when they agree on the rules. The schools interested are Bear Creek and Winneconne in 6-man football, and Hilbert, Wrightstown, Denmark, Seymour and Brillion in touch football.

One item of business didn't include sports but we'll waive the rules and mention it. Kimberly and Denmark, Brillion, Wrightstown and Hilbert, and Seymour, Shiocton and Hortonville were organized as one-act play groups. They'll select their comedies, have eliminations and the winners will meet on Nov. 16 at a place to be selected by the finalists.

L. D. Hershberger, Hortonville, is president of the conference, and G. S. Aiken, secretary and treasurer. The schools are Hilbert, Denmark, Brillion, Seymour, Kimberly and Reedsville in the Eastern division, Bear Creek, Hortonville, Shiocton, Wrightstown, Freedom and Winneconne in the Western division.

"It said, that unless the Pittsburgh football line braces, Whizzer White is going to take an awful lot of punishment for that $15,000 he is going to receive."

Lawrence college is planning to have the knot hole gang at the first home game on Sept. 24. Northwestern will be the opponent. C. C. Bailey, boys work secretary of the Y, will have charge. And Valley Council Boy Scouts will be invited to the game here on Oct. 1. The Vikes are making a special appeal to townspeople with a season's ticket at a greatly reduced price. Otherwise the admission for the Northwestern game will be 50 cents plus tax. Midwest conference games 75 cents plus tax, and the homecoming game with Carroll will be $1.00 plus for reserved seats, 75 cents plus for general admission.

Francis Gallett, Blue Mound pro at Milwaukee, won his first tournament when 14.

Some 400 high school gridders from almost every city in this section except Appleton, were at the Packer game last Sunday. Wasn't the Appleton squad invited?

Curly Lambeau, coach of the Green Bay Packers, will petition the National Football league rules committee to adopt the suggestion of Dutch Clark, Detroit's player-coach, for putting the ball in play after a score and also for a revision of the rule governing players striking the goal posts.

Clark proposes to give the team scored upon the same options permitted the winner of the toss at the start of the game. This would allow a team to change goals, if it wished, after being scored upon.

The goal post rule, which Lambeau opposes, now makes it a touchdown when a player in possession of the ball comes in contact with the posts, even though he does not carry the ball over the goal line. Lambeau favors a rule making construction of offset goal posts compulsory, eliminating the necessity for the present rule.

Doty Tennis club won't bring members of the U. S. and Australian Davis cup teams to Neenah. Don Budge wasn't available and without him the club couldn't see its way clear.

Terrors, St. Mary Play Here Saturday

Yankees Need Only 3 More Victories to Sew Up American Loop Flag

DETROIT—(AP)—The Tigers topped the New York Yankees 6 to 4 in the opener of their current series yesterday, but the defeat didn't stop the world's champions from taking another step toward their third straight American league pennant.

As a result of the doubleheader split for Boston's second-place Red Sox, in Cleveland, the Yankees now need only three wins to sew up the flag.

A pinch-triple by Roy Cullenbine at the start of the seventh inning sparked the Tigers to a two-run rally to take the game from the Yanks. They added an unnecessary run in the eighth on Billy Rogell's triple and Mark Christman's single.

Neither starting pitcher—Bump

Hadley for the Yanks and George Coffman for the Tigers—was around at the finish. Hadley gave way to a pinch-hitter in the eighth, and Cullenbine batted for Coffman in the seventh.

CLORENZ felled 666 pins to highlight the opening of the Grocers league at Elks club last night. Lorenz collected games of 202, 236 and 228 as his team, Quality Biscuits, grabbed team honors with a game score of 975 and series count of 2,848. The team collected three games from Lietheen Grains but Al Lietheen stuck in an oar and pounded out a 238 for individual game. H. Lietheen hit an even 200 for the losers while H. Welbes rolled 208 and Summitt tallied 200 for the winners.

Two other quintets, Spilkers' Bakery and Outagamie Mills, scored grand slams for a 3-way tie for first place.

H. Grishaber showed a 538 series for the Milks and A. Kositzke pounded the pins for a 221 game and 545 series for the losers, Cohens' Fruits.

Jelke's Good Luck were the victims of the Bakery squad N. Kronschalder alleys a 577 series with a 214 game. H. Dachelet hit 208 and C. Krautsch topped a 203.

Puritan Bakery snared the odd game from Wisconsin Distributing company with P. Ott collecting a 582 series and 236 game. H. Dorn pinned 206 and C. Otto 209. H. Theiss was high for the losers with a 564 series and 209 game.

Grishaber totaled 544 and E. Schabo rolled 204 as Elm Tree Bakery won two games from Verifine Ice Cream. Schneider topped the losers with a 536 series.

Pittsburgh—The Pittsburgh Pirates have purchased Carl McDade, former University of Portland center, from the Chicago Cardinals. McDade, a newcomer to National league football this fall, reported to the Pirates this week. The purchase price was not announced.

Appleton Hopes for a Victory Over Zephyrs Are None Too High

SAMPLE AILING

Hasn't Practiced but Will Show if He's Able, Coach Says

APPLETON High school grid-ers open the season at 2:15 tomorrow afternoon at George A. Whiting athletic field with hopes that are none too high. Prospects that early in the month looked good have waned and as Coach Wallace Cole prepares for the game he doesn't know whether Charles Sample, his husky back, will perform and who should take a chance with at the left tackle position.

Sample has been ailing with an injured back almost all week and hasn't been out to drills. And with a new backfield and new plays his absence means that even if he does play his use will be limited. He'll probably have to show if the Terrors are to get any place for he's the only ball carrier whose ability to pick up yardage is a known quantity.

The Terror backfield, in the absence of Sample, shows Sonny Filz at the wing back position, Alben Fraser at left half and George Heinritz at fullback. At full Filz is fast, a good open field runner and passer and knows the game. Fraser is playing his first year of ball and will make mistakes until he learns his way around. Swamp can run, kick and pass but he's light and easily bowled over. Heinritz at fullback is an experiment and it'll take a game or two to tell whether he'll do or go back to a line position.

Vets at the Ends
A couple veteran wingmen in Warren Buesing and Bill Resch have pleased Cole. Both got a lot of work last year and can grab passes. Ray Brasch has been given the right tackle assignment but the left berth is wide open. Williams has done well in it and may get back Saturday. It may be Kramer or Kemp. Both have been playing guard but can take over the tackle job with little difficulty. If one goes to tackle, Koletz probably will play guard.

Russ Becker gets first call for center for he is a veteran. However, he may give way to Crab, who is showing promise, and take the left tackle position.

The reserve position has Cole stumped at times because he hasn't had enough time with them. Menasha St. Mary is coming primed to upset the Terrors. The invaders have one of the biggest and most polished teams in several years. The backfield is built around Bill Resch, fullback, who does everything well.

In the line there are two big tackles, one going 230 pounds, a veteran center in Rube Prunski, Fred Picard is an end who, while missing several days this week, may play, in which event he'll be a constant threat on offense and a problem on defense. He was one of the best performers on the squad last year.

Washington, D. C.—Dick Tucker, former Manhattan fullback, who appears to be the Washington Redskins' outstanding rookie, received his opportunity because Coach Ray Flaherty got tired of saying "no" to Tucker's sponsor, Ed Leary, former Georgetown player.

Power Co. Softballers To Perform at Orihula

THAT famous softball game between the Appleton and Iron Mountain divisions of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company for blood, beer and baloney, which was slated for Bonduel Saturday afternoon, will be staged at Orihula instead, it has been announced. It seems that the Iron Mountain crowd got "wind" of the fact that "Kelly" Weller, manager of the Appleton team, formerly lived in Bonduel and knew the chief of police, and they figured he'd have things fixed and have a couple members of the Iron Mountain tossed in the booby hatch until after the game. So they asked for a change of scenery.

Too, H. L. Bowiby, Appleton, who will be master of ceremonies at the program which follows, admitted that the sanatorium along the Wolf river at Orihula was a much better stamping ground and place of inspiration.

Reports are that some 50 men from the Iron Mountain division will follow the team here and cheer the "Limping Leaguers from the North."

The Appleton team is expected to have approximately 100 followers and its two umpires, Ex-Alderman Robert (School Board) McGilgan and Herman (Blind Man) Kloos. The two groups will meet at the Appleton service building and make the jaunt to Orihula as a caravan. A large tent will be erected as the center of festivities.

Gordon Larson is general chairman of the affair with Jack S. Wells in charge of grounds, C. Hockings, ticket sales, Norman Zanzig, equipment. The Northern division is expected to prepare the food and being from an Italian section, reports are they'll have ravioli, spaghetti and meat balls, antipasto and similar delicacies.

The original Paul Bunyan bat has been discovered during the last week and will be the trophy for which the teams will fight. It is 10 feet long. The losing team will receive the consolation trophy from which it must drink the first round of refreshments.

Members of the squads follow:
Iron Mountain: H. Lindstrom, M. E. Gornow, W. Tiedman, J. Lewellyn, J. Radfin, E. Bogan, J. Vandehy, A. Braun, R. Ashenbrenner, A. Hillman, L. Wye Sr., W. E. Schubert, L. Vogel, H. Jacobson, C. Konkel, H. Hansen, C. Schaefer, W. Wickman, R. Hanley, S. Sekerka, C. Ertman, P. Schult, A. Ken, C. Ertman, M. Lewis, A. Ken, C. Ertman, N. Zanzig, P. Ferguson, E. Ritter, W. Harmon, B. Vecellio, R. ed them up and laid them down to score a touchdown. The try for points was blocked. In the third quarter Chilton scored again through the air. Having the ball in their possession and on their own 30, Chilton completed two short passes over the line to their own 43.

Two line plays failed but a pass way down the field was judged by the receiver but managed to hold on and stumble over the goal for another six points. With seconds to go, the Papermakers were on Chilton's 10 with the gun ending the game. All home games will be played under lights and start at 7:30.

Outdoor color motion pictures of camping activities in the northern part of United States and Canada will be shown while musical and humorous entertainment will be contributed by Tony Budwit.

Kimberly Will Invade Chilton

Papermakers Hope to Erase 14 to 6 Defeat Of Last Season

Kimberly—The Kimberly High school gridders will try to erase last year's defeat when they meet Chilton Saturday at Chilton. The Papermakers lost last years tussle 14 to 6.

In that game the running attack of Chilton did not function so they took to the air passing from their own 18 yard stripe, to gain mid-field. A penalty of five yards for off side and another heave put them on the Papermakers 20. The first play was another offside penalty and on the next play a lateral gave Chilton a touchdown.

The Papermakers did a little scoring themselves in the second quarter by doing some fancy passing. Taking the ball on their own 25 yard marker, Krueger ran around right end for a 25 yard gain. A short pass over the line to Vanden Boogaard was good for five. Another pass to Vanden Boogaard for 35 yards and Vandy pick-

25,000 May Jam Stands for Bear, Packer Classic

Isbell, Uram to See Plenty
Of Action With Green
Bay Sunday

GREEN BAY—Packer-town is ready to entertain its biggest crowd of an eventful football history when the Chicago Bears, in the traditionally greatest of Packer classics, invade City stadium Sunday afternoon. Game time is 2 p. m.

Most colorful and respected of National Pro league rivals in the minds of the fans, the Bears annually come in for rabid treatment from the Packer stands. There is plenty of room in the enlarged stadium, with a seating capacity over 25,000, but few seats will be vacant.

Attendance Climbs Rapidly
When the Bears drew 13,100 in 1936, it was the largest attendance up to that time. In 1937, the record was boosted to 16,653 by the Bears. Later in the season, however, the Detroit game had a third all-time mark rung up, with 17,553 persons taking every available inch of sitting and standing room.

The game Sunday will be No. 39 in the Packer-Bear history. A slight edge in wins and scoring has been recorded by the Bears, but of late years the margin has narrowed considerably. In Green Bay last year the Bears ran up a 14 to 2 victory, but in the subsequent Wrigley field battle, it was Green Bay's day, 24 to 14.

It is probable that Cecil Isbell and Andy Uram, those greats from the 1938 All Star fracas, will see plenty of action on the Packer lineup. The Arnold Herber, Don Hutson and Clark Hinkle machine from last Sunday's whipping of the Cleveland Rams also will be in action. And so will the other big names that are making a 1938 pennant threat of the Green Bay team. From Chicago will come many a player who has had experience against Coach E. L. Lambeau's boys. Bear Mentor George Halas has bolstered this lineup with new power, and is as confident of victory as the most loyal of Packer fans.

Creek Floods B. D. M. Fairways; Guest Day Postponed One Week

Because rising water from Mud creek is backing up onto the first fairway and other holes on the first nine, the guest day program at Butte des Morts Golf club, scheduled for Saturday, has been postponed a week, it was announced this morning by Don Durdy, chairman of the event. Thursday the situation was bad enough but Friday morning it was worse and with the Portage levee dumping Wisconsin river waters into the Fox river, the situation probably will be even worse tomorrow.

Illini Star Eligible After Hurdling Exam

Chicago—(V)—University of Illinois stocks were bullish on the Big Ten exchange today because the question of George Rettinger's eligibility finally had been answered. University officials announced last night that Rettinger, Chicago junior who is regarded as one of the brightest triple threat prospects on the Illini squad, had passed a special examination in a course he failed the first semester last year and had gained his eligibility.

Wolf River Level Only 1 Foot Below Spring Flood Peak

Believe Climb Has Ended;
Several Fields, Side
Roads Under Water

New London—Unusually high water is causing havoc with farmers in this vicinity.

The Wolf river yesterday reached the official mark of 8.2 feet, only a foot below the level that flooded sections of the city last spring. It was believed the river was at the peak of a 6-foot rise following the end of recent prolonged rains.

Farms along the Embarras and Wolf rivers north and east of the city are under water and everywhere the heavy rains have made work in cultivated fields difficult and in some cases impossible. Crops of cabbage, corn and potatoes in many fields are standing in mud or are flooded with water. Small side roads are flooded and many are closed entirely.

Soggy or flooded fields are hampering the harvest of cabbage and unless the waters recede rapidly an untold amount may be lost. About the only area unaffected is the hilly region south of the city.

Cattle Marooned
Stories of marooned cattle are common. Probably the largest herd to cause trouble was that of Frank Pogorelski, route 3, New London, who had 82 head pastured in the low land along the Wolf river west of the city. Fifty-eight head were rescued from the flooded area last Sunday but 24 young stock refused to be corralled and led rescuers a merry chase all week swimming from knoll to knoll and evading pursuers in the heavy brush.

In the city, water reached into the vegetable gardens of north side residents along Waupaca street and a tongue of the flood waters reached up to the walk on Shawano street. The basement of the city building was flooded and pumps were put to work early in the week.

FLOOD WATERS RISE TO LUMBER COMPANY TRESTLE

Water rose to the trestle of the Hatten Lumber company which protrudes into the Wolf river at New London, filling a 6-foot gap which existed 10 days ago. Viewed from the Pearl street bridge on Highway 45, the swollen waters are shown rushing between the north bank and a small island to the right, a cut which was nearly dry before the rains. A landscaped flower bed in the foreground is submerged except for the one tall plant. (Post-Crescent Photo)
